

TWO COUPLES MARRIED.

Dr. Marken, of Rosholt, and Carl Haase Marry Stevens Point Young Ladies.
Tuesday Forenoon.

MARKEN-BELANGER.
Dr. Martin Marken, a successful physician at Rosholt, this county, and Miss Nathalie Irene Belanger, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Belanger, were married at St. Stephen's parsonage at 11 o'clock yesterday morning by Father Rice. The attendants were Miss Victoria Belanger and Richard Marken, of Valders, Manitowish county, a sister and brother of the bride and groom respectively. The bride's gown was of white peau de soie, with lace trimmings, and she wore a white picture hat with white plumes and carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations. After the ceremony the bridal party drove to the Belanger home, 500 Division street, where a wedding dinner was served at 12 o'clock to a number of relatives and a few of the more intimate friends. At 2:40 in the afternoon the young couple left here for the Central for a wedding trip to Milwaukee and to the groom's former home in Manitowish county, where they expect to visit for about a week. After July 1st they will go to housekeeping at Rosholt. The young couple were very handsomely remembered with a profusion of cut glass, silver and other valuable tokens of esteem.

The bride has been a resident of Stevens Point most of her life. She attended our public and Normal schools and for the past three years has been capably filled the position of teacher, being employed in a district near Rosholt for the past two years. She is a bright, vivacious little lady, and we believe that Dr. Marken has secured a prize in the matrimonial market. The groom has been practicing his profession at Rosholt for the past couple of years and has made a success of his chosen calling. Those whom he has met during his visits to this city have formed a very favorable impression of the gentleman. The Gazette is pleased to extend its best wishes to Dr. and Mrs. Marken.

Among the relatives and friends present from a distance were Ovid Belanger and Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Belanger and two children of Wausau, Frank Belanger, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Gouger and A. P. Hirzy of Grand Rapids, Miss Emma Marken of Chicago, Miss Ida Thorsen of Scandinavia, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Teichert of Marinette, and Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Meyer and two children of Rosholt.

HAASE-HEDSKO.

Carl H. Haase and Miss Anna Hedsko were married at noon Tuesday in the parlor of St. Stephen's parsonage, Rev. W. J. Rice officiating. The attendants were Fred Herman and Miss Martha Haase. The bride wore a grey traveling suit and the young lady attendant a becoming suit of tan. The wedding dinner was served at 2 o'clock at the home of the bride, 107 Cemetery street, a few intimate friends and relatives of the parties interested being present at the reception given during the day. The bridal couple left last evening for northern Wisconsin and Michigan points, where they will enjoy a wedding trip of a few weeks. They will also attend the Saengerfest at Antigo.

Miss Hedsko has made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Lucas Nowak in this city for the past ten years and has been popular among a large circle of friends. The groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Haase of the South Side, old and respected residents. He is a cabinet maker by trade and has worked in the plant of the Coye Furniture Co. since its establishment. He is a young man of inestimable worth and integrity.

Returned to Asylum.

Simeon Carley, a well known resident of the town of Buena Vista, was taken to the asylum at Oshkosh, today, by Sheriff Guyant, with I. W. Berry as assistant. Mr. Carley, who is about 67 years of age, has been at the asylum before, but was given his liberty about two years ago, since which time he has been at his farm home and appeared in good health, both physically and mentally, until a few days ago, when he suddenly became demented and all members of his family were afraid that he would do harm.

Children's Day at St. Paul's.

Children's day was observed last Sunday at the Methodist church by the young people and the parents in the congregation, the large audience filling the auditorium of the church. All of the many young people who participated in the evening's entertainment by singing in chorus and rendering recitations, were warmly congratulated on their splendid efforts. Special music by local talent was rendered during the course of the evening, several solos and duets being greatly appreciated. Mrs. Nimitz had general charge of the music and Mrs. William Maine of the literary portion. Misses Etta Bloye and Nellie Hebard played the accompaniments. The church was prettily decorated for the occasion with cut flowers and potted plants.

Home From the Zinc Fields.

Walter Murat returned from Zinc, Arkansas, the first of the week, where he had been for nearly a year in the interests of the Stevens Point Zinc & Lead Co. This company or their successors, who own the Iola mine, have several car loads of ore on the "dump," waiting for an advance in price of the crude metal, and have found indications of additional veins that promise great returns. Walter will visit here for some time, and may not return to that locality.

All Bids Rejected.

Officers of the Polish Brewing Co. received nine bids for constructing their new plant in this city, the proposals being opened last evening and were found to range from $73,000 to $78,000 for the complete structure. All bids were rejected and the company has already made arrangements to have the work done by the day. By slightly altering the plans and making a few changes in material it is believed that the plant can be erected for $60,000 to $65,000. A crew of men is now excavating the basement and preparing to build the foundation walls.

Automobile Trip to the East.

Mayor and Mrs. T. H. Hanna and Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Bischoff are preparing to soon start out on a long and greatly anticipated enjoyable automobile trip. They will go from here to Milwaukee and Chicago, thence turn toward the east, stopping at various points of interest and cities of importance between Chicago and Washington, D. C. After reaching Washington and viewing the many sights in and about the city, they intend to leave their touring car, the one owned by Mr. Hanna, and traveling by train and boat will visit the Jamestown Exposition at Norfolk, Va., the beauties of New York city, the historical points in and about Boston and other places of greater or lesser note and importance. They will not leave until after July 4th, and will be gone for several weeks.

Died in Arizona.

News has been received by relatives here of the death of Mrs. Henry O. Jaastad, formerly Miss Millie Wick of this city, who passed away after suffering seven years with consumption, at Tucson, Arizona, on Monday afternoon, June 3, at the age of 31 years. Mrs. Jaastad was a niece of M. O. Wick and a cousin of the Misses Julia and Lettie Wick of this city. She was born in this city on Dec. 29, 1875, and remained here several years, going to Marshfield at an early age with her parents. She left for Arizona seven years ago for the benefit of her health and two years later married Mr. Jaastad, a builder and architect of Marshfield. They continued to make their home in the west, but she visited in this city frequently after that and was held in high esteem by all friends and acquaintances. She is survived by her father, Sam Wick, who lives in Minnesota, two sisters, Mrs. J. W. Ludlow and Miss Lettie Wick, of Oak Park, and a brother, Gilbert Wick, of Tucson, Ariz.

A MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Former Stevens Pointer Has Close Call in Wreck on Great Northern Road, Last Saturday Morning.

James Longevan, oldest son of Mrs. Peter Longevan and a brother of Mrs. W. E. Ule of this city, almost miraculously escaped death or serious injury last Saturday morning near Minot, S. Dak. "Jim" is engineer of the Oriental limited passenger train on the Great Northern railroad and had gone a short distance west of Palermo when the train struck a broken rail, sending the nine cars down a twenty foot embankment and all but the mail car burned. The engineer stuck to his post, and as said above, escaped injury. Fireman Nolan jumped and had his right foot and ankle sprained. Sixteen of the passengers were also hurt, among them being Thos. Armstrong, Jas. and John Drury of Green Bay.

Will Celebrate at Lanark.

The young men of Lanark are preparing for a Fourth of July celebration, which will be given at the Loftis grove, commencing in the forenoon and lasting throughout the day. Dinner will be served by the ladies of St. Patrick's congregation and there will be an interesting program, including an address of welcome by Rev. Jas. E. Meagher, the pastor, and a suitable oration by D. L. Sickelsteed of a base ball game and other attractions, to conclude with fireworks in the evening and a dance at the Blaine hall.

Gained Just Popularity.

After a few discouraging weeks to the manager, the Ideal theatre has finally attained a well merited popularity among our citizens and each night large numbers visit the entertainments, which are ideal in every respect. A few improvements have been made at a sacrifice of the manager's generosity and the programs now given are more than worth the price of admission. One of the latest features is the execution of all sound effects that the pictures call for. These are of a perfect nature, and with excellent pictures shown, the skillful portrayal of them, the splendid musical numbers and continued popularity and patronage, the Ideal will be a greater success than the most optimistic ever expected.

Brown Again Great Commander.

At LaCrosse, last Wednesday afternoon, John W. Brown, of this city, was re-elected as state commander of the Knights of the Maccabees, securing nearly 400 more votes than his opponent, A. J. Sutherland of Eau Claire, the vote standing 2,936 for Brown to 2,571 for Sutherland. The contest was quite a lively one, F. H. Weston, of Milwaukee, the great record keeper, also being a candidate for the commandment, and as a result of his activity, he is no longer a state officer. Mr. Brown, however, felt confident of his success from the start, but is no less pleased with the result. His salary was increased from $1,500 to $1,800 per year. He has been a state officer for a number of years and has been great commander for Wisconsin since the office was created four years ago.

PROMISING BOY DROWNED

Anton L. Peickard, High School Sophomore, Drowns While Fishing With a Companion Saturday Evening.

The first drowning fatality to occur in this city this season happened at about 8 o'clock Saturday evening, the unfortunate victim being Anton L. Peickard, a promising boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. August L. Peickard, 215 Prairie street. The accident was caused by the capsizing of a light scow below Bliss island, south of the railway bridge, an incident which was caused by Anton and his companion, Fritz Rosenow, rowing into a swift current.

While Mrs. Peickard was at the home of a neighbor, shortly after supper Saturday, Anton left home to meet some of his boy friends. They all talked about going fishing, but the Peickard and Rosenow boys were the only two who acted. They went to the river and started fishing at about 7 o'clock. Time went faster than they knew. Peickard paddled the scow about and Rosenow held the line. Before returning to the shore they wanted to try a certain part of the river where they had been successful before, and in order to reach the point were obliged to pass over a part of the river where the current is unusually swift. Both were confident that they could accomplish the feat. The Peickard boy was a strong and able rower and both were fair swimmers. When the most treacherous part of the current had been crossed, an apparently small eddy was struck, which proved strong enough to revolve the boat and it suddenly capsized. Anton had a heavy coat on at the time and both wore shoes. As soon as the boat tipped, Rosenow tried to hold on to it, but seeing that Peickard was taken away by the current in the effort to reach an old wooden pier, swam over to give as much assistance as he was able, the latter having called for help. Rosenow helped his companion to keep his head above water for a short distance, when both struck a sand bar, where the water was about four feet deep. The strong current at that place carried them off the bar into a deep hole, where after a desperate struggle, Anton Peickard went down to his death. Before giving up he held firmly to Rosenow's body for a time and the latter had some trouble in freeing himself, and for a few moments he, too, was in danger of being taken in by the current. Not having a coat or vest, Fritz was able to use nearly all of his strength in swimming and reached the west bank. He immediately gave an alarm at the home of Frank Wheelock, from whence Chief Leahy was notified, and Mrs. Peickard was informed by the latter.

A search for the body was commenced immediately by a number of people in the vicinity. After a tireless dragging of the river, Dan Maddy located the remains at about 11 o'clock that evening, but not having the proper appliances could not raise the body to the surface. The water was about fifteen feet deep at this point. Search was again continued at daylight by Mr. Maddy and others and at about 8 o'clock the body of the unfortunate boy was discovered, this time by J. R. Whittaker and Robert McDonald, at a point 700 feet or more below the place where he was seen for the last time and where he undoubtedly sank.

From the narration given by the Rosenow youth, it seems that Peickard became excited as soon as the eddy which tipped the boat over was struck, and could not think with any judgment after that. The boys were in difficult straits, but an investigation later proved that a sand bar, only eighteen inches below the water, is located very near the place where they first fell into the river.

Anton Peickard was one of a family of four children. He was sixteen years of age on the 13th of last February, having been born in this city in 1891. He attended the public schools and was a bright, ambitious and active student. He is survived by his parents, one brother, Carl, who has been at St. Louis for the past few months receiving treatment for spinal trouble, and by two sisters, Adella and Wilhelmina, the youngest being 12 years of age. Anton had completed his first year of the high school course during the past term and had been promoted to the sophomore year. In his regular work he gave his teachers excellent satisfaction and distinguished himself especially in the manual training department, where he had been an enthusiastic and strenuous student, as all of his work demonstrated. He was highly regarded by his classmates and by the older students whom he had met during his school life.

Mr. Peickard, father of the drowned boy, who had been working for the past few weeks near Athens for a mining firm, arrived home Monday night. Rev. A. Krusche, pastor of the German Lutheran church at Kellner, with his wife and son, arrived in the city Sunday to console the mother during the trying ordeal, the ladies being sisters.

The funeral was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the German Lutheran church, Rev. Carl Schmidt officiating. Interment followed in the parish cemetery, the pallbearers being Arthur Haak, Gearhart Marshall, William and Henry Joseph, August Cruiger and Julius Sonnenberg, all members of the deceased's confirmation class. Among those who attended the funeral from out of town were those mentioned above and Mrs. John Peickard and daughter, Miss Mable, of Shawano, and Mrs. Charles Peickard of Almond.

Boys Stoddard-Dayton Auto.

N. A. Week and family will soon be enjoying the luxuries and conveniences of a touring car, Mr. Week having ordered a Stoddard-Dayton automobile from the manufacturers and expects it here about the middle of July.

FORUM WINS IN DEBATE

Normal Forum Debators Win Fifth Consecutive Victory From Athenaeum—Ship Subsidy Was Issue of Contest.

For the fifth consecutive year the Forum won a victory in debate from the Athenaeum, last Monday evening, in the Normal assembly room, the speakers for the Forumites being Reynold Olson, Oliver Weinandy and Guy Carleton, who were opposed by the Athenaeum representatives, P. M. Geimer, Herbert Steiner and George B. Everson. The latter trio took the affirmative in supporting the issues of ship subsidies, the question upon which the rivals differed in opinion being stated, "Resolved, That it would be for the best interests of the United States to enact a law, providing for payment of subsidies to steamships engaged in trade between the United States and South America, said ships to be built in the United States, registered under its laws and be at the service of the United States in time of war." The judges, T. H. Hanna, Prof. J. N. Davis and L. J. N. Murat, decided two to one in favor of the negative. President Sims, chairman of the evening, announced the decision.

Mr. Geimer opened the debate for his, the affirmative side. After interpreting the entire question in detail, defining ship subsidy as the granting of aid to steamship lines, he devoted considerable time to the form of ship subsidies in England, Germany, France and Japan in the effort to show how the United States might profit by the example set. He argued that since experience had taught that the subsidizing of internal commercial industrial enterprises by the nation, such as irrigation, mail service, river and harbor appropriations, it would be to the interest of the government to subsidize the steamship lines as the question required.

Reynold Olson opened for the negative. He accounted for the early strength of the merchant marine as being due to protection lasting from 1789 to 1828. The decay was due to both non-protection, destructive laws and the natural turning of American capital into domestic fields. He debated that ship subsidy bears no relation to ship building, because it does not remove existing detriments. The fundamentals of ship subsidy is wrong. Foreign countries have proved that they have built up by protection. Our attempts to subsidize South American shipping has proved disastrous in the past.

The contest was continued for the affirmative by Herbert Steiner. In resuming the fight, he gave a summary of South America's development as a world power along historical, industrial and commercial lines to the present. He laid stress upon the fact that the coffee plantations and iron industry of that country is a source of profit to the outside world, thus accounting for the necessity of communication between that country and the United States. He presented figures showing what exorbitant prices were paid for South America products, notably nitrate of soda and fruits, all due to the fact that commerce was carried on by tramp steamers of foreign nations.

In a capable and convincing manner the arguing was continued on behalf of the victorious side by Oliver Weinandy. In his discussion he admitted that we want a large merchant marine and the South American trade, yet subsidies had failed to develop the marine and foreign trade in the past. He presented a system to build the merchant marine by advocating the policy of a discriminating tonnage tax, thus putting American carriers on an advantageous basis without expenditure.

The close for the affirmative was presented very forcibly by George Everson. He gave a complete summary of arguments advanced by his colleagues and continued by relating the future prospects of South America, if its commerce were controlled by the United States and also under the conditions favored by the negative. He emphasized the value of canals and railroads in that locality, giving estimates at which such could be built from Pernambuco to Valparaiso. Statistics were read showing the population and the amount of commercial prestige enjoyed by the several world powers. The United States are the least represented at Rio Janiero, the largest port of the southern continent, a fact that causes Elihu Root to say, "Our trade in that part was manifested by only two ships carrying the American flag." Lack of encouragement to steamship lines is responsible. Speaking of the advantages of southern commerce to the United States in general and to the wheat fields of Wisconsin and the middle west, the debate was closed for the side.

Guy Carleton closed for the negative by discriminating between a tonnage tax and a subsidy. He compared the two principles defining the former as an artificial subsidy. Being economical with our money by refraining from paying subsidies, he argued we can compete advantageously with foreign countries in shipbuilding. Drawing conclusions from previous statements on both sides, he quoted from W. W. Bates, A. T. Hadley of Yale, and Cramps, the greatest ship builder of the world.

The final rebuttal was scored by Mr. Geimer. In the short time accorded him he argued the opposing speakers to the confines of the definition of a ship subsidy, as first proposed and as stated in the question. He again gave the interpretation of the question and challenged the negative to the complete burden of proof for having limited their statements on incidents from 1828 to 1891 when they, the affirmative, had dealt with the question up to the present time.

The Longest Session.

Assemblyman Fred J. Carpenter spent Sunday at his home in this city. It is expected that the session will close one week from next Saturday, the 29th inst., but a few of the nearby legislators may go back later to pass upon measures after they have been approved by Gov. Davidson. This will be the longest regular session of the legislature in the history of Wisconsin, either as a state or territory, the next longest being two years ago, when it convened on Jan. 11th and adjourned June 28th. This year the session opened Jan. 9th and may close, as said before, one day later, June 29th.

Changes at the First National.

Matt V. Gross will leave here tomorrow morning for Portland, Ore., to accept a responsible position in the office of the Consolidated Investment Co., extensive manufacturers of lumber and other commodities. His family will remain here until fall when they will join him in the west. In the departure of Mr. Gross, who has ably and successfully filled the position of assistant cashier in the First National bank for several years, our city loses a most excellent young man and citizen, and all hope for his success in his new far western home.

To the position of assistant cashier Carl S. Orthman, bookkeeper at the bank for two years, has been promoted, while H. A. Miller, until recently bookkeeper in the Wausau County bank at Plainfield, has been secured to fill the place of Mr. Orthman. Roy J. Marshall, manager of the First National's collection department, is planning to secure outdoor work and may give up his present position within the next few months.

THROWN OUT AND KILLED

John Licheski, a Farmer Whose Home Was South of Meehan Station, Met With Fatal Accident Monday Night.

The body of John Licheski, aged about 60 years, and one of the oldest Polish settlers in the town of Plover, was found lying beside the track of the Green Bay & Western railroad, by the section men, near a crossing between Plover and Meehan station, at about 7 o'clock Tuesday morning. Investigation disclosed the fact that he had left Plover with his team at about 10 o'clock the night before, intending to drive home. A couple of his neighbors rode with him for some distance, until they reached their own homes, at which time Licheski, although some the worse for having indulged too freely before his departure, seemed to have good control of the team. It is supposed that the horses became frightened and ran away, as the contents of the wagon, including a quantity of lumber, was found scattered along the road, the box was thrown off some distance beyond the crossing, while the balance of the outfit, together with the team, were located at the home of a neighboring farmer about three miles further west. From the position of the body and examinations made, it is supposed that Licheski met instant death. He was a well-to-do farmer, living a couple of miles south of Meehan station, and was the father of a large family.

Dr. W. M. Gregory went to the home of the deceased this morning and made an examination of the remains, finding a jagged cut about two inches long over the right temple and a fracture of the skull while the neck was also broken. He, therefore, gave the opinion that Licheski met with instant death.

Marries Milwaukee Lady.

Frank F. Kirsling, who recently purchased the blacksmith business on Water street formerly conducted by F. A. Degen, was married in Milwaukee last Wednesday to Miss Georgianna Roehning. The young couple arrived here the latter part of the week and have already gone to housekeeping at 339 Water street. For a couple of years Mr. Kirsling was employed by Max Neseman in this city, but for three years he had followed his calling in Milwaukee and at a small station near Chicago. He is a son of A. D. Kirsling, a well known resident of the North Side, and is a fine young man. His bride will prove a welcome addition to our city.

Was Doubly Honored.

Besides being re-elected by unanimous vote as state vice chief ranger of the Catholic Order of Foresters for the next two years, J. W. Dunezan of this city was also chosen by the Menasha convention as a delegate to the international convention at St. Paul in September next. The Wisconsin delegation will number twenty-two, the others being as follows: John A. Kuyper, DePere; Gustave Keller and J. J. Sherman, Appleton; J. M. Callahan, Neenah; T. J. Callen, Roy J. Grant, Peter Westburg, M. G. Rohan and Chas. Herman, Milwaukee; John E. McCabe, Superior; John Walsh, Washburn; John Schreiber, Menasha; Leo P. Fox, Chilton; Dr. Frank Pomainville, Grand Rapids; John R. Powers, Racine; Louis Lang, Oshkosh; D. Bowden, West Bend; Albert Nunke, Chippewa Falls; A. J. Nowotny, Antigo; E. J. O'Brien, Watertown; John P. Hozan, Green Bay. The people of Menasha are entitled to congratulations for the manner they entertained the delegates and visitors. The only cause for complaint was the "hold up" successful in some instances and not so much in others. One of the hotel men.

Marriage Licenses.

Fred Lutz to Emma Waller, both of Amherst, C. W. Herrick, LeRoy, Waupaca to Mary P. O'Sh, Amherst, Jas. O. Hozan, Antigo, to Minnie Park, Rosalia, Vista, Reid, Krueger, Milwaukee, to Minnie Winkle, Lanark.

THE STOLEN NECKLACE.

It Was Seen at the Grand, Last Evening, by a Large and Pleased Audience— Norma Seniors Were Clever.

Before a full house of appreciative patrons, the Normal Seniors scored a triumph with the clever presentation of a three-act comedy entitled "The Stolen Necklace," at the Grand, last evening. Nothing but words of praise are due the ten people who filled the cast in a manner that would give professionals an enviable prestige in the theatrical world. The production was a success in every respect. In the beginning, excellent judgment was shown in the choice of the play. It is one not limiting the freedom of the several roles, and yet does not call for studied or effective acting. In the preparation and general arrangement nothing was slighted. The parts were well committed, the acting was the evidence of individual talent, and each role was assumed by one whose personal attributes particularly fitted him or her for the assignment.

The story and plot were interesting. Bernice Halstead, a young lady of eighteen, with an affection of the heart, a love of fun and a hatred of arithmetic, a part exceedingly well portrayed by Miss Fern Love, is the victim of the designs of Dwight Bradley, a fortune-hunter and a step-brother to Bernice, impersonated by Leslie Bennett, who plans to force a marriage with the latter with her inherited fortune. A will is hidden and Bernice falls the victim of pre-arranged circumstances and is accused of arrested for stealing a necklace. The plot grows more threatening to Bernice's discomfiture, while Isabel Leonard in the role of Amy Halstead, Alice Rogers as Inez Gray, the friend of the Halsteads, Miss Clara Moeschler delineating the character of Mrs. Halstead, a stepmother to the girls, furnish and are responsible for the ascending action of the play. As for Bernice, she is in love with a young doctor, a lot which fell to Oliver R. Weinandy. The latter takes advantage of opportunity, asserts his affection and is thwarted by the villain. To his rescue comes Peter Geimer, one of those good Yankee, open and big hearted farmers, who in his portrayal is known as Abraham Barnes. He, too, suffers with that affection for which Cupid and Bernice are responsible, but in his practical way is satisfied to be a friend of his first love ever afterward. A weighty character in the cast is Hannah Barnes, who keeps house for her brother. In this role Miss Blanche Means was individual and inimitable. She consoles her brother in grief and shares his pleasures. As the plot thickens and the two households seem to be cast into disgrace, Sammie, a bellboy, a colored servant, to whom George Everson was a perfect likeness, comes to the rescue of all by disgracing himself in listening to conversations and soliloquies in which the villain gives away his choice secrets. "Bub" Barnes checks the ardor of the sheriff and likewise puts the attorney, well played by T. M. Risk, "wise" to both sides of the question. Farmer Barnes becomes the hero, Sammy his accomplice and Bernice the wife of the doctor.

Several clever specialties were given during each act and these were applauded with enthusiasm. The Seniors deserve to be congratulated on their successful effort as does also Mr. Thomas A. Knott, of the Normal faculty, under whose direction the play was given. The evening's receipts amounted to about $225, and after paying necessary expenses the Senior class will have a balance of about $105.

Church Supper Tomorrow Evening.

The Ladies' Social Union of the Presbyterian church will give a 15 cent supper at the residence of W. E. Macklin, 410 McCulloch street, Thursday evening from 5 to 8 o'clock, to which the public are most cordially invited. The following menu will be served: Veal Loaf, Creamed Potatoes, Baked Beans, Vegetable Salad, Pickles, Brown Bread, White Bread, Cake, Tea, Coffee, Ice cream, 10 cents extra.

The Closing Exercises.

The class day exercises will take place at the Normal Assembly room at 8 o'clock this evening, and will no doubt be largely attended. At 2:30 Thursday afternoon, a cantata, "The National Flower," will be given at the same place, and there will be a faculty reception for the alumni, students and friends at 8 o'clock in the evening at the gymnasium. Friday forenoon at 10 o'clock the commencement exercises will be held, followed by the annual reunion and banquet of the Alumni Association, which will take place at 6:30 in the evening. The exercises except the last named are open to the public.

Good girl wanted for general housework at Merry hospital. Best wages paid. Call at once.

Dr. Price W. Rood is up from Milwaukee to visit at the home of his father, Dr. G. Rood, and attend the annual meeting of stockholders of the Stevens Point Oil Co.

The Annual Election.

The annual election of members of the School Board will be held at the various ward school buildings on Monday, July 1st, at 7 o'clock p.m., at which time successors to the following members will be chosen: First ward in place of G. L. ... Second ward in place of E. W. ... Third ward in place of ... Fourth ward in place of ... Fifth ward in place of W. R. ... John A. Redfield, Sixth ward in place of W. J. Dumbleton.

SHORT TALKS BY L. T. COOPER.

LIVER TROUBLE.

A dull, sluggish liver always brings a dull, sluggish feeling to the entire body. When the liver works properly the blood courses through the body in a bright red stream. When the liver is inactive the blood becomes dull and muddy, and it is full of poisonous matter.

A great many people try to get a fine, clear, pink and white complexion by rubbing things on their faces. They might rub a life time and the same yellow complexion would remain—for the liver causes it. Only bright, red blood brings fine complexions. Blood loaded with impurities from the liver sends the impurities out through the pores of the skin and turns the skin a brownish yellow.

To get rid of the dull, heavy feeling and muddy, yellow complexion get the liver to working again. Two bottles of Cooper's New Discovery will do this nine times out of ten though sometimes it takes four or five bottles.

Here's what a man who tried it says: "My health had been poorly for several years. My face was yellow and covered with pimples. I was bothered constantly with chronic constipation, had little or no appetite and could not sleep well at night. I became weak and lost all ambition. I tried many different medicines but nothing seemed to help me until I began taking Cooper's New Discovery. It seemed to help me at once. Now, after I have taken several bottles I feel entirely well. My face is clear, I sleep well, have a good appetite and am quite myself again."

"I am deeply grateful for my restored health." Michael Silk, 24 Kentucky Ave., Indianapolis, Ind.

TWO HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Father and Child Nearly Trampled by Run-away Team, and the Latter Receives a Bad Cut.

In moving household goods from the brick residence at 316 North Third street, Frank Konopacki and his three year old daughter had a narrow escape from being trampled to death under the feet of two runaway horses, at 4 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon. A stove and several other articles had been loaded into the wagon, when the horses started off suddenly, throwing the driver, who held the little girl in his arms, from the seat over the dashboard. After going for a short distance, the horses collided with a telephone post and their hasty advance was checked. Mr. Konopacki scrambled from under the horses feet, but had no little trouble in rescuing the child, who was terribly frightened. The little one was badly cut over the right eye, some sharp object or the point of the seat having struck her a hair's breadth from the pupil, and a gash an inch in length was torn at right angles with the eyebrow. Owing to the hysterical fright in which the child remained for some time afterward, the attending physician, Dr. D. S. Rice, had difficulty in dressing the wound.

Sent Toward the East.

Officer Hafsaas found a stranger on the street the other evening, and guided him toward the lockup. The fellow happened to be in an independent mood, however, and by laying down on the walk, yelling like a famished hyena, he refused to even roll. The hurry-up wagon was summoned and he was given a night's lodging. The man was found without the "filthy lucre" with which to pay his fine the next morning, and being sober and repentant, he was given another ride in the hasty ambulance and left in the temperance part of the country, on the banks of the Plover river. Disregarding Horace Greeley's advice, he went eastward afoot.

THEY ARE NOW ALUMNI

Commencement of Last Week Adds Twenty-two Young People to the Many High School Graduates.

The twenty-two graduates of the Stevens Point High school for 1907 commemorated their commencement in participating in the usual pleasant events, the class day exercises, which were held Wednesday evening, and the more formal yet always welcome program, given at the Opera House, Thursday evening. Both were largely attended by parents, relatives and friends.

Over 600 people taxed the capacity of the High school as embryo room at an early hour Wednesday evening, when the class day program, so delightful to both the Senior and Junior classes, as well as to the two lower classes, was rendered. The program was opened by the High school orchestra, which at its first appearance earlier in the year, created a fine impression.

Harry Young, president of the twenty-seventh class, which has successfully completed the assigned four year course, gave the opening address, during which he expressed many same thoughts to his classmates concerning the final realization of their patient endeavor during the four years in school. Florence Stieler recounted the class history, telling of what problems the class had to contend with during their successive years of High school life, how each member had distinguished him or herself by some individual trait.

The more evident traits of the class in general, and likewise the individual accomplishments of the members, were lauded with no small degree of pride. The history was written up in a manner that was commendable. Incidentally the school faculty were criticized or complimented as their past thoughtlessness or thoughtfulness demanded.

The High school chorus of about thirty voices sang a pleasing selection, which was followed by the rendering of the class poem by Gertrude Holman. This was an original effort and was the evidence of unusual ability on the part of the writer. It also treated the Seniors in general and their work.

The boys' chorus of fifteen voices contributed a musical number and was followed with the "Charge to the Juniors" by Mamie Dobeck, whose remarks were met with equal class pride by Carl Katernahl, to whom was assigned the "Response to the Charge." Miss Dobeck advised the under class members to emulate the good qualities for which the members of her class were especially noted. Those who were lacking in any of the virtues were supplied with such very generously by their representative. In the response, Mr. Katernahl showed very convincingly that the moral assets of the Juniors was in a slight degree greater than that of the graduates. He thanked the Senior speaker in behalf of his class very gallantly and promised they would do as bidden. This portion of the exercises is always a special feature, and the treatment accorded it by the two speakers mentioned served to increase the usual interest.

After two piano selections by Julia Dumas, both rendered in a way worthy of much praise, followed the class will. Mildred Horn being the speaker. That young lady showed considerable tact and originality in the preparation of what she contributed. The special ability of the several Seniors and even their liabilities were left as a legacy to the Juniors.

Nellie Reading, with characteristic cleverness gave the "Class Memories" to her associates. Each Senior received some small gift, which was directly or indirectly suggestive of some personal individuality. The presentation was the cause of much laughter. "Voice of the Western Wind" was sung with their usual success by the girls' chorus, when the "Class Prophecy" was given by Merle Cartmill. The speaker was garbed in the college cap and gown and in her prophecy of future greatness each member might achieve, she created a fine impression. With the aid of a vivid imagination the speaker provoked much pleasantry in the humorous depiction of what or where the Seniors would be several years hence. The High school quartette, the personnel of which is Harry Young, Merle Young, Alice Rosenow and R. B. Woodworth, were received with long continued applause for their rendition of "Love's Old Sweet Song." Much individual ability, and careful training proved to be well developed. The class farewell and final adieus was taken from the teachers, pupils and all interested in the school in behalf of the Seniors by Florence Kingsbury, who took only an optimistic view of the future in every respect.

The program was closed by the boys' chorus, who sang "Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep."

The main room was prettily decorated for the occasion with the class colors of green and white, streamers and bunting being used in many ways to good advantage and with pleasing effects. The rostrum was well filled with potted plants and the general surroundings indicated that the Juniors had spared no pains in making that feature of the preparation a source of pleasure to the Seniors.

COMMEMORATION PROGRAM

Though the greater part of the several hundred people present at the graduating exercises, Thursday evening, at the Opera House, it was evident that their enthusiasm and delight was increased only by their anticipation. The rise of the curtain disclosed the usual pretty scene that never fails to call forth a delightful demonstration. The fourteen "sweet girl graduates" in beautiful white gowns, contrasted with the dignified presence of the young men in black suits and the wealth of coloring furnished by the magnificent bouquets of roses, together with the decorations on and about the stage in green and white and potted plants, furnishing a scene that is always a source of much pleasure to behold. The seniors were seated in a semi-circle. Places on the stage were occupied by Supt. J. N. Davis, Rev. James Blake and E. W. Sellers, treasurer of the board of education. The invocation was uttered by Rev. Blake. The opening number of the evening's program were two selections by the High school girls' chorus, both of which were met with hearty applause. The first member of the graduating class to appear on the program was Ella Langenberg, who gave a dramatic reading, "The Winning of Katherine," and the salutatory address. In interpreting the difficult selection of the thought and sentiments in her selection, Miss Langenberg merited the praise of the most critical. The theme was a recital of how a brave soldier won the love of a noble lady. As demonstrated on previous occasions, Miss Langenberg has marked dramatic talent that is assurance for much future promise. Her general treatment of the piece in gesture and expression was perfect.

A feature of the many musical selections with which the program was so thoughtfully interspersed, was "Little Cotton Dolly," a quaint Negro melody and lullaby. Each one of the young people who took part deserve individual praise. Suffice it to say here, however, that everyone voiced the general opinion that it was "just splendid." Cicely Dineen appeared next and recited an essay on "Hull House," the place of the original effort at the broader view of life, for which several women were responsible, and who established many great ideas after indefatigable and persistent labor. Miss Dineen showed a comprehensive view of the subject, and in the general treatment disclosed an unusual amount of research and careful preparation.

A piano solo, a selection from Verdi's "Il Trovatore," by Mamie Clifford, one of the graduates, elicited countless complimentary remarks. Miss Clifford, who is a student of Miss Helen Hein of this city, showed remarkable ability. Her technique was excellent, and from her interpretation of the classical selection, it was evident to all that she possessed a proper appreciation for the effort of the gifted composer.

In his discussion of the "Early History of Stevens Point," Wayne Bentley was rewarded with the keen interest of his audience. The hardships of the early pioneers who hewed a promising city from a dense pine forest, were recited with a certain degree of pride and admiration that asserted itself in the lines of the essay. The talk embodied much that is lacking in reference libraries, a fact that added interest to the subject. Mr. Bentley, who possesses an agreeable form of expression, used good judgment in his word structure and made a fine impression.

After a musical selection, "Who is Sylvia," from Schubert, rendered by the High school girls' semi-chorus, Clay Curran delivered an interesting address on "Some Causes and Results of the Civil War," during the course of which he recounted in a marked patriotic spirit the early efforts at reconciliation by the North and South and told how the Civil conflict finally proved inevitable. In his resume of the historical facts, the speaker presented the personality of the great statesmen of the critical period, notably that of Daniel Webster, whom he quoted at some length. Accounting for the causes, Mr. Curran dwelt with equal length upon the results of the war. In the latter portion, he devoted some time to great public questions of the present day.

A musical number that was the cause of delightful surprise on the part of the audience was the extraordinary ability demonstrated by the rendition of "Concert Valse," from the composing of Schuett, by Irma Schulhof, of Abbotford, a pupil of Miss Katherine A. Rood of this city. The interpretation was in itself a feature, yet added to this was the true dramatic treatment that generally reveals the real musical artist. There was a marked finish to her work that bespoke much for the teacher as well as the pupil and in whose rendition there was nothing lacking. As an encore, to which Miss Schulhof responded, she rendered a reverie that was both pleasing and delightful and in which her ability was well set forth.

Mary Van Hecke created a fine impression with a description of the writings of the author, Kate Douglas Wiggin, who has made herself famous with her treatment of child life, especially in pathos. Miss Van Hecke recited "Patsy," one of the best works of the author, and in doing so the young lady won the admiration of all her hearers. She was obliged to portray two characters, each of great contrast to the other, but she did this task without the slightest indication of its being difficult. She was at her best in portraying the part of the leading character. Humor and pathos were treated with equal and remarkable skill.

Clarence Coye, a youthful violinist with an apparent future, accredited himself beyond the vaguest expectations at his first public appearance. He plays his instrument with rapt attention and brought forth real music that was pleasing, a task not always accomplished by young students on the sweetest, but most difficult of instruments. The accompaniment was on the piano by Nina Coye. The final essay, "Some Aims of Emerson High School," and the valedictory address, were then presented by Edna Gee. In her discussion, Miss Gee told how the local school keeps up with all the progressive ideas of a High school education and what attention is given to the work in order to keep the standard of scholarship and moral influence at its highest. The young lady accounted for the introduction of manual training and domestic science into the regular work and also dwelt for some time on the school life incidental to the regular requirements, that is the literary work and athletics. All the thoughts expressed were original and and were well told. In the valedictory were voiced the usual expressions of regret at leaving school and an appreciation for work accomplished.

The High school boys glee club rendered "Out on the Deep" with becoming ability, after which Supt. Davis spoke briefly, thanking the audience for the interest manifested in the work of the city schools and stated that the object of education was to develop the hand to be as proficient as the brain dictates it should be. E. W. Sellers was introduced and before presenting the diplomas gave a pleasing address, in which was embodied much valuable advice to the outgoing Seniors, closing with the words, "I bid you God speed in the new career upon which you are entering. Make the very best of life. Devote yourselves to some great work. Choose your calling, find your angle and work from it. Form your ideal and work up to it, and whatever your life work shall be, do not forget the rudimentary instructions of your common school life, where were implanted the ennobling principles of manhood and ennobling womanhood."

As their names were called, each senior advanced and received their diplomas, each realizing as they retraced their steps that on the sea of active life they were "launched, but whither bound."

Examining Committee Held

The examining committee of the state Normal schools, including Mrs. Youmans, of Waukesha, and Messrs. Harrington of Oshkosh, Kittling of Madison, Roemer of Milwaukee, and McFarland of this city, spent Thursday in the city and conducted the examination of the graduating classes at the Normal. They were entertained at dinner by the young ladies of the domestic science department. President and Mrs. Sims and Miss Josephine Fitzgerald were guests at the function.

Some Ancient Mythology.

Marshfield News: How Conductor Wm. Carr ever got it in his noodle that we were an admirer of ancient mythology is more than we can guess. Carr now lives in Chicago. He used to live here, and since his leaving there is a Carr shortage that is sadly missed. Last week he remembered us with two souvenir postal cards, one showing Noah's ark surrounded by water and the other an illustration of wash day at the home of Adam and Eve. This is a pathetic scene and shows to ripening generations how sadly our first parents were in need of clothing. It's a mighty lucky thing they lived in a time when dinners and card parties were yet undiscovered. On a line made of grape vine, drying in the sunlight, is the result of Eve's washing—two fig leaves. Eve is hid behind the wash tub, while Adam is sitting near by, clothed in smiles until his fig leaf is dry. What ever possessed William Sunflower Carr to send us these antediluvian scenes is more than we can see. Anyway, thank you Bill for remembering us.

Algie is Responsible.

The following interview appeared in last Saturday's issue of the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin, and is no doubt responsible in a large measure for the warm, sultry weather this section has experienced during the past few days: "If Milwaukee people had been getting the kind of weather we had up in Portage county then there would be reason for grumbling in this city," declared County Clerk A. E. Bourn, whose home is in Stevens Point. "Last week there were three frosty mornings and considerable garden truck and other tender plants were killed. Such a spring has never been known up our way. Early planted potatoes are rotting in the ground and much replanting already has been done. Corn is just peeping above ground and I have grave doubts that it will be knee high by July 4th. There is an agricultural maxim that corn that is not knee high on Independence day will be a failure and it certainly looks as if that would come true this year. There has not been such an excessive amount of rain but the sun has not shown long enough to dry the surface of the ground and it's the sun that makes things grow on the farm. The outlook for the farmers this year is anything but satisfactory."

Normal Notes.

The examinations of the elementary and full course graduates were held by the examining committee of the state Normal regents on Thursday and Friday.

The most successful and enjoyable social event of the school year occurred last Friday evening, when the juniors gave the annual banquet and reception to the seniors and faculty. A splendid three course dinner was prepared by Mrs. Kellar and served by twelve of the elementary girls. P. M. Geimer presided as toastmaster and performed the duties with dignity. George Everson responded to "The Junior Girls," and made himself a gentleman in their estimation. Miss Emma Anders lauded the attributes of "Our Faculty," and in behalf of that distinguished body, Pres. J. F. Sims responded. T. M. Risk recounted the "History of the Senior Class." Dancing was enjoyed by the several hundred people present until 10:30.

The class day exercises will be held in the assembly room this evening. Tomorrow a general reception will be given by the students to everybody in the city interested in the welfare of the Stevens Point Normal. The alumni of the institution will begin to arrive here tomorrow and on Friday afternoon will hold the reunion and business session, all to conclude with the alumni banquet Friday evening. On Saturday and the following days will occur the usual and annual exodus of the Normalites.

SELECTIONS

HUMAN LEATHER.

It is difficult to get workmen to handle the skin.
Human skin can be prepared, tanned and made into durable articles as such as fully as well as the skin of horses and other animals. The so-called leather is very much like dogskin or pigskin. William Hansell of Philadelphia has the latest article which has ever been known to be made from human skin—a beautiful pure white saddle, and any one examining it would be at a loss to tell the kind of skin from which it is made. The pores have a familiar look, but the skin itself is of an astonishing thickness. This saddle was made from the skin of one man. A woman's skin, generally speaking, would be too delicate. Human skin leather is a very rare article, and there is no general trade in it. Sometimes a physician will have a piece made into a cover for an instrument case, and occasionally medical students get enough to be made into a purse or a pair of slippers. Patients sometimes have a belt or a book cover or some such article made from a limb which has been amputated.
The work of tanning human skin is pretty much the same as that of curing any other skin. Curiously enough, tanning goes through the epidermis to the under-skin, and not a little of the tanning of human skin is done for the purpose of preserving the designs tattooed upon it. Sculp with the hair on them so tanned are said to make the best wig known, and because the tanning is done with alum instead of with oils, as is the case with furs and most of the hair covered skins of commerce, the resulting leather is much more durable.
It is very hard to get workmen to handle the leather. Mr. Hansell, owner of the saddle spoken of above, gave his piece of skin after it had been tanned to an old workman who had always made up all his leather goods and told him to make it into a saddle. Three weeks the workman kept the skin, and one day he brought the partly finished saddle to Mr. Hansell with some question about finishing. "By the way, Hansell," he remarked, "I wish you would tell me what this skin is. It is the most contrary stuff I ever worked with."
Very indignantly Hansell informed him that it was human leather. At that the workman dropped the half finished saddle and left without a word. He never returned, and nothing would induce him to finish the job. Mr. Hansell turned the unfinished saddle over to another workman, but he took good care not to tell him what kind of leather the "contrary stuff" was.—Chicago News.

Flags Are Not Toys.
The board of United States general appraisers has many curious and interesting questions to decide in regard to the classification of imported articles and the rate of duty which they must pay. One of the latest decisions is that the flag of the United States is not a toy. A Japanese firm of importers in Chicago had brought in a consignment of silk flags, each an inch and a half long, and asked that they be admitted at 35 per cent ad valorem. The appraisers, however, decided that the flags must pay a duty of 50 per cent as manufactures of silk. "We do not think," they said, "that the American flag, however diminutive, is commercially, commonly or nationally regarded as a plaything for children, and we find that the flags in dispute are not toys."—Youth's Companion.

Crossing the Delaware.
Addressing the Sons of the Revolution at their Washington's birthday banquet in New York, Talbot Williams dispelled a familiar illusion. "Everybody," he said, "remembers the famous picture of Washington crossing the Delaware in an attitude which would lead any one in charge of the boat he was in to tell him to sit down." Mr. Williams said that as a matter of fact Washington, as he had been told by a man who had got it from General Cadwallader, who was present at the crossing, waited for every one else to cross and then was rowed across the river by a single farmer. His aid, Knox, Mr. Williams said, crouched in the bow of the small boat in such a manner as to cause Washington to remark on the dr of his conduct.

A Legacy and a Title.
Many times did the German emperor press the title of prince upon Herz von Bayern before the latter would accept. The statesman wanted the title, but could not afford to live up to it. Of this the Kaiser knew nothing, of course. At length, about eighteen months ago, a letter from Von Bayern died, leaving the title to a few days later he died, and the title was then passed on to the Kaiser. The Kaiser, however, was not willing to accept the title, and the title was then passed on to the Kaiser. The Kaiser, however, was not willing to accept the title, and the title was then passed on to the Kaiser.

New Gold Coins.
President Roosevelt's private secretary, George H. Brown, has been asked by the designers on the gold coins now in use, and he has requested a New York artist to prepare new designs. According to the designers, the old designs had been changed often more than once in twenty-five years. The law also provides that each coin shall bear the emblem of liberty, the year of coinage and the words "E Pluribus Unum." The present gold coins have been in use almost fifty years.—San Francisco Argonaut.

LAST OF THE HARMONISTS.

Bandmaster Doss and His Claim to a Large Pennsylvania Estate.
Many people who have seen John S. Doss at the head of his famous band would be surprised to learn that he and his wife are the last of the Pennsylvania Harmonists. The Harmonist cult was founded by George Rapp, a native of Wittenberg. Rapp came to this country with a company of 140 men in 1803, and a community settlement was established at Zionsville, Pa. Later the Harmonists moved to Ellettsburg, Iowa, where they have been known as Harmonists. Doss was one of the last of the Harmonists of the sect, and every man or woman joining it had to take a vow to remain single. The mother of Doss lost her husband in the civil war. She took vows as a member of the community, and her child was adopted into the society. It was determined to send him to a boarding school. He did not return to Ellettsburg on finishing his schooling, but became a farmer in Nebraska, married and prospered. Twenty years after leaving Ellettsburg he returned to the community, taking with him his wife and children. He was welcomed, and as there were but few of the Harmonists left, the celibacy rule operated to reduce the society's numbers, he devoted himself to looking after its affairs and succeeded in putting the community on a better financial footing. He and his wife agreed to live as brother and sister, and he was chosen head of the community. Now the Harmonists are all gone but Mr. and Mrs. Doss, and the latter claim to be the legitimate heirs to the estate of the society.

ONE MARRIAGE A FAILURE.
But This Did Not Discourage Lady Grey-Egerton From a Second.
Lady Grey-Egerton, who a short time ago became Mrs. Richard McCreary, has had some strange matrimonial experiences. She was Miss May Gayler and is the daughter of an American army officer, the late Major Wayne Gayler, a descendant of the famous General "Mad Anthony" Wayne. She formerly lived in Morristown, N. J. During a European trip she met Sir Philip Grey-Egerton, and both fell ardently in love. Their marriage in 1893 was a social event of much note, and for several years Lady Grey-Egerton was one of the most popular of the titled American women in London, being much admired for her beauty and talents. Twin sons were born and a daughter. The ancestral estate, Oulton Park, Cheshire, is one of the most charming country seats in England, and it seemed that his mistress must be a happy woman. But one day Sir Phil-

Pain Kills Some People

Pain kills many people from the simple fact that it wears them out, robs them of peace of mind by day and night, and will not cure it. The condition calls for a nerve tonic that will give strength and positive power to the nervous system and enable it to throw off the trouble. Mrs. Wm. Spenthorpe of 105 Chicago St., Syracuse, N. Y., tells you clearly just how she obtained a positive result in her case. She says: "I was always nervous, but of late years I could not sleep, was intensely nervous, ringing sounds in the ears and sharp noises and pain in my head at night. My strength was very low. I had attacks of vertigo when I was so dizzy I had to catch hold of something until it passed off. This condition certainly needed attention as it was growing steadily worse. Dr. A. W. Chase's Nerve Pills were recommended to me, and I used them. The results were splendid. The nerves became quiet—the noises, pain and ringing in the head together with the dizzy spells disappeared completely and I began to sleep well again. The general strength came back and as a result I feel well every way again." 50c a box at all dealers or Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect It.
How to Find Out.
Fill a bottle or common glass with your
water and let it stand twenty-four hours;
if sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys; if it stains
your linen it is evidence of kidney trouble; too
frequent desire
to pass it or pain
in the back is
also convincing proof that the kidneys
and bladder are out of order.
What To Do.
There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy,
fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism,
pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder
and every part of the urinary passage.
It corrects inability to hold water
and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.
You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free
by mail. Address Dr.
Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

I will mail you free, to prove merit,
samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my book on either dyspepsia, the heart or the kidneys. Troubles of the stomach, heart or kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean stomach weakness, always. And the heart, and kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr.
Shoop's Restorative has made its fame.
No other remedy even claims to treat
the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative.
Write me today for sample and free book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Col. Bryan has gone on record as objecting to a third term. It may be said, however, that so far there is nothing personal in this.

The Magic No. 3.
Number three is a wonderful mascot
for Geo. H. Parris, of Cedar Grove,
Me., according to a letter which reads:
"After suffering much with liver and kidney trouble, and becoming greatly discouraged by the failure to find relief, I tried Electric Bitters, and as a result I am a well man today. The first bottle relieved and three bottles completed the cure." Guaranteed best on earth for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by H. D. McCulloch Co.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL
Health is Worth Saving, and
Some Stevens Point People Know How to Save It.
Many Stevens Point people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to remain in danger
when all diseases and aches and pains
due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Stevens Point citizen who has reclaimed good health by the use of this remedy:
Mrs. Charles H. Duke, wife of Charles Duke, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors of Portage county, and living five miles south of Stevens Point, R. F. D. No. 4, says: "Both my husband and myself found Doan's Kidney Pills a reliable remedy for backache and kidney troubles. This remedy has been used in our family for a number of years. I used them for weak back and kidney trouble,
which was made apparent by dull
aching across the loins and a weakness at times that almost made me helpless. Mr. Duke has also found great benefit for backache and other symptoms of kidney trouble which made him feel poorly and unfit for business.
The results of using the medicine were all that we could ask. The pain and weakness left him and they made a permanent cure. He thinks so much of Doan's Kidney Pills that he is always urging his friends to use them."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts.

CLEANING THE TOWN.
Garbage Can Furnaces For the Disposal of Refuse.
WASTE BURNED ON STREET.
Innovation Made by Street Cleaning Department of New York City Has Proved Worth While—Refuse Destroyed Quickly.
The plan recently adopted in the city of New York for the disposal of refuse on the streets by burning it in cans is proving highly successful. So well did one of the portable refuse incinerators that were given a trial do its work that twenty-five more were purchased, and it is likely that hundreds of these traveling furnaces will be in use throughout the city. This plan might be adopted in any progressive town or village to advantage, as nothing spoils the beauty of a place like rubbish scattered on sidewalks and streets. Not only is trouble saved for the men whose work it is to keep the streets
sweet, but the street cleaning commissioner feels that an important step in the sanitary handling of town waste has been taken.
Nothing could be more simple than the new incinerators and nothing cheaper, since they are merely worn-out street cans, making a furnace, one can superimposed, bottom up, upon the other, says the New York Evening Post. The lower can has a grate above at a height sufficient to form an ash pit. The sides of the lower can are perforated for the admission of air necessary for combustion, while the upper can, inverted and fitting into the lower receptacle, forms a dome, which prevents the escape of burning material. In this upper dome is a door through which fuel or waste is supplied to the lower can.
The furnace, placed on the ordinary can carrier, is thus wheeled through the streets, the cleaner feeding with waste as he patrols his beat. This continuous method of garbage disposal goes on all day, and when the work is ended it but remains to deposit the fine ashes in the pit into one of the street cans. When it is not desired to use the refuse destructors, they are simply unshipped from the carriers and left in the section houses.

most unobtrusive kind. This may be made long and slender or short and fat to suit the taste of the user. It is crescent shape, as its name indicates,
and has a string at each end, by means of which it is tied at the waist of the wearer, fitting in at the waist line. It will never be found in the way of the sewing and will always be at hand with pins or for them. It is invaluable to the cutter-out, as a pincushion of any other shape if attached to the person will be in the way, and if not made fast it will be—well, generally
when wanted, it will be under the bed.

DAINTY DESSERTS.
Chocolate Almond, Tapioca and Banana Sponge and Pineapple Mousse.
Chocolate Almond Delight.—Dissolve
one package of raspberry gelatin in a full pint of boiling water. Strain when it begins to harden and press in one-half pound of chocolate almonds.
When firm, serve in college ice glasses,
with a spoonful of whipped cream over
each glass and an almond in the center
of each.
Tapioca and Banana Sponge.—Sprinkle half a cup of tapioca and two-thirds of a cup of sugar into one pint of boiling water, add half a teaspoonful of salt and cook in a double boiler, stirring occasionally. When the tapioca is transparent, add the juice of two lemons and the whites of two eggs beaten until stiff. Spread over sliced bananas and serve with cream and sugar or with a cold boiled custard previously made. This dish may be made with canned peaches or quinces, using the juice of the fruit instead of water.
Pineapple Mousse.—One tablespoonful of granulated gelatin, one-quarter cup of cold water, one cup pineapple syrup, one tablespoonful lemon juice,
one tablespoonful of curacao, one cup sugar, one quart heavy cream. Put the contents of a can of sliced pineapple in a saucepan and bring to the boiling point. Drain and to one cup of syrup and gelatin soaked in cold water and dissolved in boiling water add lemon juice, sugar and curacao. Strain and cool. As the mixture thickens cut and fold in the whipped cream. Mold and pack in ice and salt, using four measures of ice to one of salt. Let stand four hours or longer. Serve in glass dish surrounded with slices of pineapple.
For Hubby's Birthday.
Give your husband and some of his near friends a bohemian supper on his birthday. Decorate your dining room with odd plates, pewter flagons and steins. If you can secure tiny stiff trees, use these for a hedge across the windows, alternating with candles across the mantel, or plants of any sort will do. Have a bare top to your table and a mass of scarlet flowers or a bowl of red and yellow fruit in the center. For a before supper entertainment have caricatures and cartoons hung about the walls. Find a variety of toasts with which to decorate
name cards made from rough brown paper, or you can secure name cards
with English scenes on them or picture
postals. For supper serve rice bread, cheese and ham sandwiches, sliced raw
onions, potato salad, pickles, coffee, celery and cheese. You need plan no
further entertainment for the men.
They will enjoy stories around the table.
How to Keep in a Fire.
If a fire is needed to be kept in for a long time, the following method is recommended:
On the top of a glowing fire place
some newspaper, damped and folded into tight balls. On the top of this place a layer of damped coal dust and then again a layer of newspaper balls,
finishing with a layer of coal dust.
When the fire is required it will only be necessary to take a gentle stir and place a few small pieces at the top,
and in a short space of time a fire will be a good one. All others should be carefully sifted, such a fire is a fresh fire. They are the best fire to keep in the fire place, and it is well for the chimney, when a clear fire is maintained.

Fire Protection For Small Towns.
Suggestions made by Councilor T. C.
Menlove of Verdun, Man., at a recent convention cover the question of village or town fire protection, says the Municipal Journal and Engineer. According to the source of water supply plants must vary, but in any event
there should be storage tanks of wood or concrete near the points of greatest risk. The bottoms of these tanks should not be more than twenty feet from the level of the street, and the manhole should be large enough to permit cleaning. As to apparatus, a book and ladder truck carrying a couple of wall ladders extending from twenty-six to thirty feet, 100 pails and two hand fire extinguishers are of the first importance. A small two cylinder fifty gallon chemical extinguisher, with drop bottom for dumping acid, is capable of putting out 80 per cent of all the fires that will occur. Of engines for pumping water the steam fire-engine takes the lead, but the expense of maintenance of a gasoline engine
is less, and it is accordingly recommended. The use of a hose wagon is recommended because quicker work can be done, and it keeps the hose in better condition than when wound on a reel. The personnel of the fire department should not be neglected, and the chief should not only be an experienced man, but should be so favorably known that his men will have confidence in him and carry out his orders with alacrity.
Rich Women Make Dirt Fly.
As an object lesson to didactic highway commissioners the women of Verdun, Cal., recently turned out with picks
and shovels and smoothed the wrinkles out of Washington boulevard. In the army of roadmakers were the wives and daughters of millionaires. They began to fly early in the day and holes
which have been the bane of travelers along the thoroughfare were smoothed and a new finish. At noon the work served under the trees at the roadside.
Auto parties which passed along the road cheered the women who were

THE HAYWOOD TRIAL.

The prosecution in the Steunenberg murder trial, entering in earnest upon the substantiation and corroboration of Harry Orchard's testimony, showed a continuous thread of evidence connecting George Pettibone's store in Denver with Orchard at San Francisco engaged on the Bradley murder plot, partly another direct line by which it is hoped to show that Haywood engaged and paid Steve Adams for the same desperate work, and added special touches of confirmation to Orchard's general story.

The Haywood defense closed the cross-examination of Harry Orchard by a fierce attack on his motives in confessing. He was moved to tears, but maintained that he was actuated solely by a desire to make reparation for his crimes and save his soul.

The Haywood defense carried the cross-examination of Orchard down to the Steunenberg murder. The witness told of a plot to kidnap the children of a rich miner for ransom and said it was suggested by David Coates, former lieutenant governor of Colorado.

Harry Orchard, on the stand for his sixth day in the Haywood trial, firmly withstood all the attempts of the defense to discredit his story. He denied that the Federation leaders left him without money. He told of a plot to blow up 150 non-union men in Globeville which was stopped by Haywood.

Into the further cross-examination of Harry Orchard counsel for William D. Haywood repeatedly threw the suggestion of a great counter conspiracy, formulated and carried out by the enemies of the Western Federation of Miners, and indicated a determination to construct their main line of defense on that field. Orchard was firm in his denial of this theory.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The missing launch of the battleship Minnesota was located in 27 feet of water in Hampton Roads. Across the little craft was a tell-tale piece of towing line, serving to convince the naval officers that they are right in their theory that the launch was run down by a boat of some kind in tow of a tug. The diver who went down to examine the launch reported that the heads and arms of three men were protruding from beneath the canvas covering.

WAR HEROES HONORED

MONUMENTS ERECTED TO NOTED SOLDIERS AND SEAMAN.

Statue to Gen. Lawton, Who Fell in the Philippines, Unveiled at Indianapolis by President Roosevelt.

Indianapolis, Ind.—That patriotism in this country is not at a low ebb is indicated by the number of memorials to heroes and statesmen recently erected. There is a close connection between patriotism and art. One is especially reminded of this in the study of ancient countries, and it is becoming more and more true of America. The fact has been emphasized within a short time by the unveiling of a statue of Commodore John Barry in Philadelphia and the completion by Karl Bitter of a statue of Gen. Franz Sigel for a site on Riverside Drive. Further emphasis was added with the unveiling on May 30 at Indianapolis of a statue of Gen. Henry W. Lawton, at which the president made an important address.

Gen. Lawton was a soldier of the civil war, saw service in the Spanish-American war, and was killed while fighting in the Philippines. The republic has many memorials of soldiers of the revolution and the civil war, but as yet few erected in honor of heroes of battle for the flag in the faraway islands of the east. Special interest attaches to the memorial unveiled at Indianapolis for this reason.

Gen. Lawton, who was born at Manhattan, O., in 1843, began his military career as an enlisted man in a volunteer regiment in 1861 and held the rank of major general of volunteers when his life was ended by a Filipino bullet on December 19, 1899. His commission as a brigadier general in the regular service was being prepared when he was shot. When war with Spain broke out he was in demand in the field, for he had enjoyed not only a civil war experience, but a career as an Indian fighter on the plains of the west. One of the famous episodes of his career was his pursuit and capture of Geronimo. He was in command of the second division of the fifth army corps before Santiago, and on the conclusion of peace was transferred to the Philippines.

He captured Santa Cruz, a Filipino stronghold, April 10, 1899, and San Isidro on May 15, and on June 1 was placed in command at Manila. He had begun an offensive campaign looking toward the capture of Aguinaldo when he was killed while directing an attack upon the insurgents in an engagement near San Mateo, about 15 miles from Manila. A monument was erected by American soldiers at the spot where he fell. This memorial is in the shape of a pyramid 15 feet high. On the top an old Spanish cannon is mounted, surrounded by four modern shells. The brave commander was greatly beloved by the soldiers who fought with him in Cuba and the Philippines, and his character was most highly esteemed by President Roosevelt, his comrade in Cuba, a fact that led the latter to accept the invitation to make the principal address at the unveiling ceremonies at Indianapolis.

ports of Mr. Bitter since he received the commission for the work about three years ago. The unveiling ceremonies will occur in October next. The site for the memorial is Riverside Drive, and it will be one more important adornment for a locality that has already come to be known as the Acropolis of New York.

The Barry statue was presented to the city of Philadelphia by the Society of Friendly Sons of St. Patrick, of which the naval hero was a member. It is of bronze and of heroic size and stands in front of Independence hall, where it was unveiled on March 16 by a great-grandniece of Barry, 12-year-old Miss Elsie Hazel Hepburne. Barry is often called "the Father of the American Navy," and his right to the title was defended by Rear-Admiral George W. Melville, retired, in an address which was the leading feature of the unveiling ceremonies. Barry was born in Ireland in 1745 and came to the colonies when 15 years old. He commanded the first ship that flew the continental flag and captured the first vessel taken by an American warship.

GRANT'S OLD HOME IN ST. LOUIS.

Cottage Once Occupied by Great Soldier and Traded for a Farm.

St. Louis.—While modern brick dwellings have sprung up on all sides in the vicinity of Tenth and Barton streets, there remains standing two doors west of the corner an antiquated little wooden cottage, guarded by memories so sacred that the hand of the despoiler has never dared to raise against it.

The humble structure was the abode of Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, soldier, statesman and president of the United States, and it is believed, was the birthplace of Gen. Frederick Grant, the revered soldier's son.

The fact that the cottage was once owned by Gen. Grant was brought to light by a recent article in a St. Louis paper stating that a patriotic wave of reverence for the name of Grant had started in St. Louis and was being fostered by the Grant Cabin association, which plans to restore Grant's log cabin on the fair grounds to its original site on the Grant farm in St. Louis county, near Fenton.

Mrs. Philomena Hollweg, of 1002 Barton street, one door east of Grant's former abode, which she owns, recalled the article and communicated with the paper, stating the fact and giving what scraps of its history she recalls.

The little structure has a ground floor containing four small rooms. An attic room is reached by a narrow flight of rickety wooden stairs.

The house was occupied by Mrs. Hollweg and her husband for many years after they acquired it in 1865, for $3,025 from the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. White.

SECRETARY STRAUS' WIFE.

Only Jewess Among Cabinet Ladies Is a Beautiful and Cultured Woman.

Washington.—The wife of the new secretary of commerce and labor is many years younger than her husband. Mrs. Straus was one of the beauties of New York Jewish circles, and her 20 years of married life have left her still a queenly and beautiful woman. She possesses rare culture and shares with her husband the genius of diplomacy. As Miss Sarah Lavenburg she was known for her graces and charities.

For many years after her marriage, Mrs. Straus devoted her entire attention to the care and education of her daughters, and it was not until President Cleveland sent her husband as minister to Turkey that she found a field for her broader sense of diplomacy. Oscar Straus and his brother, Nathan, fought hard for the election of Cleveland, and it is a strange coincidence that Oscar Straus should have accepted a cabinet position under a Republican president, though a Democrat, while his brother declined one under the president they both helped to elect.

Washington is the most cosmopolitan city in America and Mrs. Straus will not find thorns in the path of social success. Her own frank and open manner will win her friends, and her fine intelligence will lead her unerringly through the maze of diplomatic amenities, obligations and intricacies, in which she is already a skillful and exceptional sailor.

DOUMA IS DISSOLVED

RUSSIANS QUIET BUT RIOTS OF WORKMEN ARE LIKELY.

GOVERNMENT CONFIDENT

Capital Well Protected by Troops—Nine of the Indicted Deputies Are Arrested.

St. Petersburg.—An imperial ukase was issued Sunday proroguing the council of the empire until November 13.

The dissolution of the second douma Saturday night was received throughout St. Petersburg with perfect tranquility, thanks to the precautionary measures, and in no place in Russia, so far as is known, were there any serious disturbances.

Demonstrations among St. Petersburg workmen are anticipated Monday, but the authorities are not alarmed. They profess to be chiefly apprehensive over the possibility of rioting and racial excesses in Odessa and Kiev and other cities where party feelings run high. An outbreak of agrarian disorders in several regions of the empire is anticipated later, when the peasantry learn of the dissolution, but a spirit of quiet confidence in the ability of the government to handle the situation prevails in administrative circles.

Though Gen. Dracheffsky, prefect of police, was nominally in charge the provisions for public safety were virtually in the hands of Gen. Hazen-kamp, the aide to Grand Duke Nicholas Nikolaevitch, who returned from Krasnoye Selo to assume command of the combined garrison, including the guard corps, the Thirty-seventh infantry division, a large force of cavalry and Cossacks and several machine gun detachments. The military was chiefly disposed in the industrial section, but a strong force occupied the Tauride palace vicinity.

During the night nine of the 16 social democratic leaders, specifically named in the government indictment, including Prince Tzertzereteli and M. Dzshaparidze, were taken into custody.

FALLS FROM A MONSTER TREE.

Peculiar Death of an American Near Oaxaca, Mexico.

Oaxaca, Mex.—After a meteoric career in Mexico as the manager of large agricultural interests belonging to an American syndicate, J. W. Johnson, of New York, died a very remarkable death near here Saturday, falling from among the branches of the famous "Arbor de Tule," a great tree, said to be the largest in North America and located near this city.

The authorities are of the opinion that Johnson's death was suicidal. The tree of Tule is of an enormous growth, and witnesses state that Johnson fell from branches 50 meters above the ground.

TWO LIVES LOST IN STORM.

Rain and Lightning Do Serious Damage in Minnesota.

Sherburn, Minn.—Two lives are reported lost and considerable property damage done by a severe electrical storm which raged for nearly six hours in this vicinity Sunday. Rain fell in torrents, amounting to a cloudburst in the vicinity of Fairmount. Streams are running bank full, roads and bridges are carried out and numerous washouts are reported. Many houses, barns and windmills were struck by lightning and badly damaged. A man and a boy, names unknown, are reported to have been killed by lightning near Dunnell.

REWARDED FOR SPANKING GIRLS

Iowa School Principal Punishes Pupils and Gets More Pay.

Bristow, Ia.—Prof. D. H. Correl, president of Bristow schools, was brought into court on a charge of assault and battery. The charges were filed by girl students at the school who testified that the teacher made a practice of spanking them.

The teacher's defense was that the girls were naughty and that spankings were necessary to maintain discipline. He was acquitted and the school board immediately increased his salary.

Secretary Taft Well Again.

St. Paul, Minn.—Secretary of War Taft arrived here from St. Paul at 5.30 Sunday morning. He said he had entirely recovered from his indisposition. No formal reception was planned but several hundred people called to pay their respects.

Report That Aoki Will Be Recalled.

Tokio.—The Heichi says that Viscount Aoki, Japanese ambassador to America, will probably be recalled and that he will likely be succeeded by Baron Kaneko.

CHAPTER VIII.—Continued.

She slipped it mechanically over her finger.

"But you, my dear Mr. Comstalk!" he cried, turning his shining eyes upon me, while his fingers deftly replaced the gems in the bag.

"I have no jewelry," I replied, tossing aside the cigarette.

"But you have something infinitely better. I am rather observant. In Friard's curio-shop you carelessly exhibited a wallet that was simply choking to death with long yellow-boys. You have it still. Will you do me the honor?"—stretching out his slim white hand.

I looked at William; he nodded. There wasn't the slightest chance for me to argue. So I drew out my wallet. I extracted the gold-bills and made a neat little packet of them. It hurt, hurt like the deuce, to part with them. But—

"Game, William, isn't he? Most men would have flung the wallet at my head."

"Oh, he is game, sir; never you doubt it, sir," said the amiable William.

"I have some silver in change," I suggested with some bitterness.

"Far be it that I should touch silver," he said generously, did this rogue. "Besides, you will need some thing to pay for this little supper and the fare back to New York." My bills disappeared into his pocket. "You will observe that I trust you implicitly. I haven't even counted the money."

William sniggered.

"And is there anything further?" I inquired. The comedy was beginning to weary me, it was so one-sided.

"I am in no particular hurry," the rogue answered, his sardonic smile returning. "It is so long since I have chatted with people of my kind."

I scowled.

"Pardon me, I meant from a social point of view only. I admit we would not be equals in the eye of the President."

And then followed a scene that reminds me to this day of some broken, fantastic dream, a fragment from some bewildering nightmare.

CHAPTER IX.

For suddenly I saw his eyes widen and flash with anger and apprehension. Quick as a passing sun-shadow, his hand swept the candelabrum from the table. He made a swift backward spring toward the door, but he was a little too late. The darkness he had created was not intense enough, for there was still the ruddy glow from the logs; and the bosom of his dress-shirt made a fine target. Besides, the eyes that had peered into the window were accustomed to the night.

Blang! The glass of the window shattered and jingled to the floor, and a sharp report followed. The rogue cried out in fierce anguish, and reeled against the wall. William whipped out his revolver, but, even from his favorable angle, he was not quick enough. The hand that had directed the first bullet was ready to direct the second.

All this took place within the count of ten. The girl and I sat stiffly in our chairs, as if petrified, it was all so swiftly accomplished.

"Drop it!" said a cold, authoritative voice, and I saw the vague outlines of Haggerty's face beyond the broken window-pane.

William knew better than to hesitate. His revolver struck the floor dully, and a curse rolled from his lips. Immediately a heavy body precipitated itself against the door, which crashed inward, and an officer fearlessly entered, a revolver in each hand. This tableau, which lasted fully a minute, was finally disturbed by the entrance of Haggerty himself.

"Don't be alarmed, Miss," he said heartily. "It's all over. I'm sorry for the bullet, but it had to be done. The rascal has nothing more serious than a splintered bone. I am a dead shot. A fine night!"—triumphantly. "It's been a long chase, and I never was sure of the finish. You're the cleverest rogue I have been my good fortune to meet this many a day. I don't even know who you are yet. Well, well! we'll round that up in time."

Not till the candles again spattered with light, and William was securely handcuffed and disarmed, did I recollect that I possessed the sense of motion. The smoke of powder drifted across the flickering candles, and there was a salty taste on my tongue.

"Horrible!" cried the girl, covering her eyes.

The master rogue and his valet were led out into the assembly-room, and we reluctantly followed. I saw it all now. When Haggerty called up central at the club, he ascertained where the last call had been from, and, learning that it came from Hollywood Inn, he took his chance. The room was soon filled with servants and stable-hands, the pistol-shot having lured them from their beds. The wounded man was very pale. He sat with his uninjured hand tightly clasped above the ragged wound, and a little pool of blood slowly formed at his side on the floor. But his eyes shone brightly.

"A basin of water and some linen!" cried the girl to Moriarty. "And send all these people away."

"To yer rooms, ivery one of ye!" snapped Moriarty, sweeping his hands. "Tis no place for ye, be off!" He hurried the servants out of the room, and presently returned with a basin of water, some linen and balm.

We watched the girl as she bathed and bandaged the wounded arm; and once or twice the patient smiled. Haggerty looked on approvingly, and in William's eyes there beamed the gentle light of reverence. It was a picture to see this lovely creature playing the part of the good Samaritan, moving here and there in her exquisite gown. Ah, the tender mercy! I knew that, come what might, I had strangely found the right woman, the one woman.

"You're a good little woman," said the rogue, his face softening; "and a good woman is the finest thing God ever placed upon earth. Had I only found one!" He turned whimsically toward me. "Are you engaged to marry this little woman?"

"No."

"Surely you love her!"

perhaps that was it. They are always behind good actions and bad. Haggerty!

Once we were seated in the lonely car, the girl broke down and cried as if her heart would break. It was only the general reaction, but the sight of her tears unnerved me.

"Don't cry, girl; don't!" I whispered, taking her hand in mine. She made no effort to repulse me. "I am sorry. The rascal was a gallant beggar, and I for one shouldn't have been sorry to see him get away. There, there! You're the bravest, tenderest girl in all this world; and when I told him I loved you, God knows I meant it! It is one of those inexplicable things. You say I have known you only eight hours? I have known you always, only I had not met you. What are eight hours? What is convention, formality? We two have lived a lifetime in these eight hours. Can't you see that we have?"

"To shoot a human being!" she sobbed. Her head fell against my shoulder. I do not believe she was conscious of the fact. And I did not care a hang for the conductor.

I patted her hand encouragingly. "It had to be done. He was in a desperate predicament, and he would have shot Haggerty had the detective been careless in his turn; and he wouldn't have aimed to maim, either."

"What a horrible night! It will haunt me as long as I live!"

I said nothing; and we did not speak again till the first of the Blankshire lights flashed by us. By this time her sobs had ceased.

"I know I haven't done anything

We Watched the Girl.

"Surely I do!" I looked bravely at the girl as I spoke.

But she never gave any sign that she heard. She pinned the ends of the bandages carefully.

"And what brought you to this?" asked Haggerty, looking down at his prisoner.

The prisoner shrugged.

"You're the making of a fine man in you," went on Haggerty generously. "What caused you to slip up?"

"That subject is taboo," replied the thief. "But I want to beg your pardon for underestimating your cunning."

"It was all due to a chance shot at the telephone."

"I kept you guessing."

"Merrily, too. My admiration is wholly yours, sir," returned Haggerty, picking up the telephone exchange-book. He rang and placed his lips to the transmitter, calling a number. "Hello! It is the chief of the Blankshire police? Yes? Well, this is Haggerty. That idea I hinted to you was a mighty good one. Prepare two strong cells and have a doctor on hand. What? Oh, you will find your horse and carriage at Moriarty's. Good-bye!"

My money was handed over to me. I returned it to my wallet, but without any particular enthusiasm.

"It's bad business, William," said I. "It's all in the game, sir,"—with a look at Haggerty that expressed infinite hatred. "In our business we can't afford to be careless."

"Or to talk too much," supplemented his master, smiling. "Talk, my friend, rounds me up with a bullet in the arm, and a long sojourn behind stone walls. Never talk. Thank you, too, Mr. Comstalk, for the saving grace of humor. If it were possible, I should like to give Miss Hawthorne the pick of the jewels. This is a sordid world."

"Ye'er carr is coming!" shouted Moriarty, running to the window.

So the girl and I passed out of Hollywood Inn, leaving Haggerty with his mysterious prisoners. I can't reason it out, even to this day, but I was genuinely sorry that Haggerty had arrived upon the scene. For one thing, he had spoiled the clamor of the adventure by tingeing it with blood. And on the way to the car I wondered what had been the rogue's past, what had turned him into this hardy, perilous path. He had spoken of a woman;

especially gallant to-night; no fighting, no rescuing, and all that. They just moved me around like a piece of stage scenery."

A smile flashed and was gone. It was a hopeful sign.

"But the results are the same. You have admitted to me that you are neither engaged nor married. Won't you take me on—on approval?"

"Mr. Comstalk, it all seems so like a horrid dream. You are a brave man, and, what is better, a sensible one, for you submitted to the inevitable with the best possible grace. But you talk of love as readily as a hero in a popular novel."

"I never go back," said I. "It seems incredible. doesn't it, that I should declare myself in this fashion? Listen, for my part, I believe that all this was written,—my Tom-foolery in Mouquin's, my imposture and yours, the two identical cards,—the adventure from beginning to end."

Silence.

"Suppose I should say," the girl began looking out of the window, "that in the restaurant you aroused my curiosity, that in the cellars my admiration was stirred, that the frank manner in which you expressed your regard for me—to the burglar—awakened—"

"What?" I cried eagerly.

"Nothing. It was merely a supposition."

"Hang it; I love you!"

"Are you still the Capuchin, or simply Mr. Comstalk?"

"I have laid aside all masks, even that which hides the heart."

She turned and looked me steadily in the eyes.

"Well?" said I.

"If I took you on—on approval, what in the world should I do with you in case you should not suit my needs?"

"You could return me," said I laughing.

But she didn't.

How She Broke the Cup.

Signora Veronelli (seeking a servant)—Why were you sent away from your last place?

"Because I broke a coffee cup."

"Was that the only reason?"

LIVE STOCK

DIPPING SHEEP OR HOGS.

Good Tank Which Can Be Made of Cement or Galvanized Iron.

A good tank for dipping sheep, goats or hogs may be made of cement or galvanized iron. A good size is 10 or 12 feet long, at top, eight feet at bottom, with a height of at least five feet, with two feet. The tank shown in cut corresponds to these measurements, and D. H. Stovall, Oregon, writes has been in use for several years, giving good satisfaction.

THE BALKING HORSE.

Diverting His Attention May Succeed in Getting Him Started Again.

A horseman who seems to know what he is writing about, says if the attention of a balking horse can be diverted half of the trouble is over; yet how few men will refrain from beating him at such times. When a horse is inclined to be balky he should be put in charge of the best horseman about the place and not driven by every one on the farm. If he is inclined to stop say "Whoa!" sharply. Then he will not think he is stopping of his own free will. Get down and walk about him, lifting up one foot and then another, tapping them with a stone may answer in diverting his attention. Pretend to fix his collar; perhaps his mane is under it and needs attention. There are many ways of diverting a horse's attention to make him forget his bad habits, like pouring a little water in his ears or rubbing sand in his mouth. Then if you speak to the quiet horse alongside of him they may start off together or they may not. In any event keep cool. One scheme may work this time and may never work on the same horse again. The only alternative is to be ingenious, patient, long-suffering and kind until you find some other fellow that wants to take a hand at driving a balky horse.

HOGS AND SHEEP.

Don't think that a pig eats merely to live.

A wet, slippery pen often makes a lame hog.

It is well to shift the hog pasture every year or two.

In crossing, use males from the smaller of the two breeds.

Have you any animals on the farm that return such large profits for the money invested as sheep?

Keep the best pasture for the lambs. Clover is good, so is a fresh blue grass pasture, but an old one is productive of worms and possibly death.

Never buy a poor sheep; you have no time to fool with it. Let your neighbors experiment and throw away their feed if they wish. Buy the best quality you can, but try to have the whole flock uniform.

It is best to have salt boxes in the pasture where the sheep can find them at will, but if not done, make a practice of salting them every Sunday morning. You will get acquainted with your sheep then, and careful shepherds know it pays to promote friendship between flock and flock-master.

Parent hogs overfed with corn always produce offspring weak in bone and muscle. It requires bran, middlings and ground oats to make healthy pigs, and the sooner the farmer learns this the larger will be his profits.

The Kind of Ram You Want.

In selecting the head of the flock strive to encourage the development of stamina. Males possessing full chest development, well sprung ribs, head well set upon the shoulder, and broad forehead with a deep, open nostril giving plenty of capacity for breathing, are the most important qualities in the ram. The flockmaster wants lambs that show evidence right from the start they are going to make a live of it, and, when sold, repelish the pocketbook. Such lambs are profitable, and if more flocks possessed this quality, far more sheep would be maintained upon American farms today.

Piles in Swine.

For piles in swine give sulphur in swill one to two tablespoons a day per head until better, then every few days until all right. Keep the hogs dry as possible. We had much trouble a few years ago, caused by feeding too rich, heavy bran slop without salt. Hogs should have salt and sulphur every week in the year.

Castrating Pigs.

All castration necessary should be done when the pigs are six weeks old, and while they are still with the sow. It might be well to add that all males from common litters should be castrated, as no reliance can be placed on the offspring of such sows, even though they were sired by a pure-bred.

The Head of the Herd.

One farmer says that the poorest the sows are the greater is the necessity for a good boar. This is true. A medium-quality boar bred on poor sows will not lift up the average very fast. The head of the herd is the chief factor in the improvement of the herd.

THE SCAB INSECT.

Of All External Parasites It is by Far the Most Dangerous.

Of all external parasites the scab mite is by far the most dangerous and troublesome, once it is permitted to effect a lodgment upon the sheep. It is not a common ailment upon farms in the east, but is sufficiently prevalent upon the ranges of the west to make the danger of infection great. In fact, upon the ranges, scab and starvation are the two principal diseases among the flocks.

The scab mite is an insect so small that it is not quite visible to the naked eye, lives upon the skin, and by irritating the surface, it causes a flow of the fluid upon which it lives, and finally, by continuing this irritation, scabs or crusts are formed beneath which the insect deposits its eggs. In the course of two or three days, says Rural New Yorker, these eggs hatch. The newly-born parasite becomes adult in 15 days. Each female parasite will lay about 15 eggs, 10 of which will bring forth females and the other five males.

The new parasites, as soon as they are hatched, migrate and infect the adjacent territory, which makes the scab patch spread, by the constant advance of its circumference, and the eggs of new parasites are deposited upon posts or boards upon which the sheep rub themselves, and thus are ready to seize any advantage to again locate themselves upon other sheep, when they in turn become centers of infection. Gerlach, a German authority, computes that in three months a single female scab insect may become responsible for the existence of 1,500,000 progeny, thus in 45 days after infection the increase from one parasite might be 1,500; in 75 days, 150,000, and in 90 days, 1,500,000. As a matter of fact, it requires about 90 days for the scab disease to become well spread and very troublesome after introduction into a clean flock.

SILAGE IN FATTENING STEERS.

Prof. Thomas Shaw Thinks That Corn Silage Cannot Be Beat.

In corn growing areas it is my conviction that no food for growing or for fattening steers will prove cheaper or more valuable than corn silage. In saying this I know the opinion expressed is counter to what many believe who live in the corn belt, but I will not take back or modify the statement.

A steer that is fattening and that weighs 1,000 pounds should be fed from 30 to 40 pounds of corn silage daily. It goes well with clover hay or alfalfa or any leguminous fodder. Of the latter five pounds or about that much would be wanted per day. The grain ration, fed ground, would be about a pound or slightly more per day for every pound of the live weight of the steer. The amount mentioned is for a steer after he is on full feed. Leading up to full feed, considerably less would be used. The meal should be fed on the silage. When the silage is put in the feed box, the meal and silage are mixed while they are being eaten, which means that all is rechewed in chewing the cud, which is favorable to thorough digestion.

It will not answer to feed only silage as the fodder ration. Some dry fodder is necessary as a safeguard, but when the silage is sweet and good, it would be safe to feed somewhat more than the amounts mentioned. Fed in suitable amounts the succulence exercises a favorable influence on digestion.

The day is certainly coming when there will be a great extension in the building of silos, and it cannot come too soon. No other method of saving corn will compare with it. It utilizes the entire product, stalk and grain.

HOGS IN SUMMER.

Shelter from the Heat of the Sun Should Be Provided.

The sketch shows a simple means of providing shelter for hogs. This plan is intended to afford protection from the hot sun and sudden storms. In a corner of the hog lot may be erected four posts in addition to two fence posts, says Prairie Farmer. Three stringers are placed across three pairs of these posts and boards nailed over the top as indicated in the sketch.

Americans Eating Mutton.

The Americans are getting the mutton eating habit. Heretofore they have been wedded to the sirloin steak, but now they are catching on to the merits of the mutton chop. This change in taste means much for the future of the sheep man, for the sheep will make good meat out of much food which is generally wasted on the farm, while the income from the wool may be counted anyhow as so much clean profit.

One farmer says that the poorest the sows are the greater is the necessity for a good boar. This is true. A medium-quality boar bred on poor sows will not lift up the average very fast. The head of the herd is the chief factor in the improvement of the herd.

EXPORTS ARE GROWING FAST.

Shipment of Manufactured Articles Increases—Crude Material Lessens.

Washington.—Great as has been the growth in the volume of the manufacturing products of the United States since 1850, the bureau of statistics has issued a statement showing that the proportion of these products which have been exported has grown steadily. While in 1850 the exports were 6.4 per cent. of the entire product, they had increased in 1905 to 9.1 per cent.

Taking the articles which have undergone a process of manufacture and comparing the exportations with those of all articles the bureau finds that it formed 32 per cent. of the total exports in 1850 and 60 per cent. in 1905, while articles in a crude condition formed 68 per cent. of the exports in 1850 and but 40 per cent. in 1905.

Articles which have undergone a process of manufacture increased twenty-three-fold during the period, while those exported in a crude state increased less than seven-fold, indicating a growing tendency to turn the product into a finished state by American labor before offering it for sale abroad.

On the other hand, articles which have undergone a process of manufacture formed in 1850 82 1/2 per cent. of the imports, and in 1905 but 54 1/2 per cent.; while these in a crude state, chiefly used in manufacturing, formed but 17 1/2 per cent. of the imports in 1850 and 45 1/2 per cent. in 1905. This shows a tendency to bring the foreign article into the United States in its crude state to be transformed here into the finished product by American labor.

RATS MAKE A TEETOTALER.

Final Experience for Man Who Swore Off Five Hundred Times.

Altoona, Pa.—"I have sworn off 500 times in the last 25 years, but this time it's for good," declared J. J. Malloy of Cresson, after being released from city prison. "They arrested me here for being drunk and put me in a cell where the beds were made of iron and where there were rats. I never saw such rats in all my life. They're as big as cats and they are as numerous as bees in a hive. Their boldness was startling. Why, one climbed up an iron rod and stole a sandwich while I was looking at it. No, sir; no more booze for me after last night. I've cut it out for good."

Malloy was twice arrested for drunkenness in two days. After his first offense he came to talk it over with the mayor, and was told his honor was busy.

"Well, my time is as valuable as his," Malloy said, and he left.

He proceeded to tank up again, and fell into the hands of the police. When his name was called for the first hearing he was sleeping off his second drunk in prison. Later, when he was arraigned, he was fined $20, and said he would go to jail before he would pay it. A night with the rats changed his mind. He stood for three hours before the Pennsylvania railroad depot waiting for a train to take him home, afraid to run the risk of passing a saloon for fear his good resolution would be broken.

DEFENDANT WAS A BIRD.

Malden Court Pronounces Death Penalty on a Captured Gamecock.

Boston.—An unusual defendant in a case before Judge Charles M. Bruce, in the Malden district court the other day was a valuable gamecock captured at the farm of Charles M. Walker in North Reading, on Sunday, May 5, when constables of that town and the state police interrupted a cock-fight. About 60 "sports" from various places had assembled to witness the fight. The court tried to determine the ownership of the rooster, and as this seemed to be impossible, Judge Bruce sentenced the bird to death. It has been in charge of a constable since its capture on May 5. At that time it was taken from Patrick Donovan, who claimed to have been offered half a dollar by some one to carry the bird away, when the police made their descent and the crowd scattered. After that Donovan was fined $25 for being present at the game, and Walker, the owner of the farm where it took place was fined $100 for being a party to the affair. He appealed.

THIRST ILLS GAIN IN TOPEKA.

Sale of Liquor as "Cure All" During May Breaks Record.

Topeka, Kas.—The frightful prevalence of "stomach trouble," "indigestion," "kidney disease," "colds," and "rheumatism," among the people of Topeka is told in the reports of sales of liquor made by the 25 druggists here. The total liquor sales for the month made on sworn affidavits is 21,323. All these people made affidavit that they were suffering from one or more of the diseases above enumerated before they were given the liquor.

These sales give no idea as to the amount of liquors sold. A sale may be a bottle or a case of beer. It may be a half pint or a gallon of whisky, just as the severity of the "disease" may require. These sales of liquor are 50 per cent. more than ever before reported in a single month. They tell the story of Topeka's dire calamity and of the epidemic of "sickness" which has taken hold of the people. One store reports nearly 100 sales of liquor each day which required the services of three extra clerks.

SUFFERED TORTURES.

Racked with Pain, Day and Night, for Years.

Wm. H. Walter, engineer, of Chatsworth, Ill., writes: "Kidney disease was lurking in my system for years. I had torturing pain in the side and back and the urine was dark and full of sediment. I was racked with pain day and night, could not sleep or eat well, and finally became crippled and bent over with rheumatism. Doan's Kidney Pills brought quick relief, and in time, cured me. Though I lost 40 pounds, I now weigh 200, more than ever before."

GOOD IDEA FOR MATCHES.

Double Enders Popular Among Smokers in Mexico.

"Mexico may be behind us in some things, but she has us lashed to the wheel when it comes to making matches," said a man just in from the land of the Montezumas as he handed out a wax lucifer with a head on each end.

"I saw nothing but double ended matches while I was away, and I can tell you that they save one's record with the Recording Angel. If you dig down in your pocket and find one match the chances are that you are sure of a light, because if one end goes out the other is left. These old time matches, just revived, that splutter brilliant sparks may be all right when it comes to pleasing the baby, but the fellow who puts on the market a double ended match will find a ready demand."

BLACK, ITCHING SPOTS ON FACE.

Physician Called It Eczema in Worst Form—Patient Despaired of Cure—Cuticura Remedies Cured Her.

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black spotsches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a severe itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of suffering, to such an extent that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of ——. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in the worst form. Their treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. My husband purchased a single set of the Cuticura Remedies, which entirely stopped the breaking out. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every spotch was entirely gone. I have not felt a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. Mrs. Lizzie E. Sledge, 540 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1905."

Would Take What They Had. A gentleman purchased at a post office a large quantity of stamped envelopes, newspaper wrappers and other postal requisites.

Finding them somewhat difficult to carry, he asked one of the counter clerks if he could supply him with a small quantity of string.

"We are not permitted by the department to supply string," was the reply.

"Then give me a bit of red tape," was the sarcastic retort.

The string was supplied.

WORKING WOMEN, WHAT THEY SHOULD KNOW

MRS. SADIE ABBOTT

MRS. PREE MCKITRICK

Women for the most part spend their lives at home, and it is these women who are willing and ambitious that their homes shall be kept neat and pretty, their children well dressed and tidy, who do their own cooking, sweeping, dusting and often washing, ironing and sewing for the entire family, who call for our sympathy.

Truly the work of such a woman is "never done" and is it any wonder that she breaks down at the end of a few years, the back begins to ache, there is a displacement, inflammation or ulceration of the abdominal organs, a female weakness is brought on, and the struggle of that wife and mother to continue her duties is pitiful.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, is the exact medicine a woman needs whose strength is overtaxed. It keeps the feminine organs in a strong and healthy condition. In preparing for childbirth and recuperating therefrom it is most efficient. It carries a woman safely through the change of life and in making her strong and well assists her to be a good wife and mother.

Mrs. Sadie Abbott, of Jeannette, Pa., writes:

"I suffered severely with pain every month and also a pain in my left side. My doctor prescribed for me but did me no good; a friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I wrote you in regard to my condition. I followed your advice and am a perfectly well woman. The pains have all disappeared and I cannot recommend your medicine too highly."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Succeeds Where Others Fail.

SKILLFUL "TRUST BUSTER"

Cordenio Arnold Severance, the government attorney who has unearthed such valuable evidence in the Harriman railroad deals that the department of justice has resolved to start criminal suits, is a young western attorney who had achieved an enviable reputation as a corporation lawyer when he enlisted with the government forces. Mr. Severance was born and raised in Minnesota and has held a number of offices, including that of state senator.

Mr. Severance's law business extends all over the country, from Massachusetts to California. He has been counsel for various railroads in the northwest, also for a number of Chicago packers, for the United States Steel corporation, and numerous other business industries. He was employed by the interstate commerce commission in the recent investigation into the Harriman railways. In connection with latter proceeding he took testimony in New York, Chicago, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and ably argued the matter in Washington, and his skillful handling of the last mentioned investigation was especially commended.

As a partner of United States Attorney Frank B. Kellogg, Mr. Severance was associated with him in all the important trust investigations in which that lawyer figured so successfully, notably the Western Paper trust and the workings of the Standard Oil company.

Mr. Severance is immune from the common disease of running for office. He delights in social intercourse and his genial disposition has won him a prominent place in leading clubs of Minnesota, Duluth, Chicago, New York and Brooklyn. Whether telling a humorous story or pursuing an octopus, Mr. Severance enters into the spirit of the thing with all the vim and enthusiasm that even strenuous President Roosevelt could ask.

SURGEON GENERAL RIXEY

Presley Marion Rixey, surgeon general of the United States navy, who attended the late Mrs. McKinley in Canton, O., has had official care of the health of the presidents of the United States for the past nine years. He accompanied President McKinley on his fatal trip to the Pan-American exposition and was with him when he died.

Dr. Rixey was one of the most skillful, experienced and widely traveled surgeons of the navy when William McKinley became president. He was made a White House physician and took charge of Mrs. McKinley, who had been in precarious health for years.

The engaging manners of the Virginian and the success which attended his care of Mrs. McKinley attracted the president to him. The two became fast friends. One of the last official acts of Mr. McKinley before he was struck down by the assassin's bullet, was to arrange for Dr. Rixey's promotion to the position of surgeon general of the navy.

One of President Roosevelt's first acts on taking office was to carry out the dead president's wish. Dr. Rixey was made surgeon general with the rank of rear admiral.

Many honors have come to Dr. Rixey in the course of his career, one of the most prized being a decoration from King Alfonso XIII. of Spain for his valuable services rendered to officers and men of the Santa Maria following an explosion on that vessel.

Rather tall and of courtly bearing, and possessing a wholesome geniality that never fails to make friends wherever he goes, Dr. Rixey is a general favorite in all circles of official Washington.

HAD NO OPPOSITION

To run for office and be elected without opposition is an unusual thing in American politics. This rare distinction has befallen D. R. Anthony, Jr., who was nominated for congress by the Republicans of the First district of Kansas to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation of Congressman Curtis to the United States senate.

Mr. Anthony received a remarkable political endorsement in that he was unanimously nominated by his own party, and the Democrats of the district met and resolved to make no nomination against him.

The new congressman is editor of the Leavenworth Daily Times, and is a son of the late Col. D. R. Anthony, one of the pioneers and historical characters of Kansas' struggle to be a free state. He is also a nephew of the late Susan B. Anthony, and a brother-in-law of Capt. Koehler, the army officer who recently had a clash with Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood in the Philippines.

As showing the trend of politics in the western states, Mr. Anthony's platform calls for revision of unfair tariff schedules by the friends of the protective principle, stands for government control of the railroads as advocated by President Roosevelt, and declares for the curbing of criminal trusts and monopolies.

EASY GOING MONARCH

King Carlos of Portugal is the happiest, most easy-going and pleasure-loving ruler in Europe. The only cloud upon his horizon has been a parliament which persisted in trying to make laws and run the country. Life was not worth living, decided the jolly monarch, with such a pest always on hand, so he sent the lawmakers home and proclaimed that he would run the country alone for three years.

The private life of Portugal's monarch is rather interesting, because it is more like that of a private gentleman than the daily round of a sovereign. As he rises at five in the morning, he contrives to get all his work done before midday, then five days of the six he gives over the afternoon and evening to his one amusement—sport. He has explored every corner of his kingdom in his motor car, and a short time since, when driving through some out-of-the-way place, he had rather an amusing experience. Arriving at a small town, he found a crowd waiting, but no one recognized him. In fact, the chief point of interest at that moment was an old woman, who had had her basket of eggs upset by those who posted her. The king, with his usual good nature, approached and asked what was the matter. "They say the king is coming through here, so these idiots are waiting to see him. One cannot even do one's daily labor, with this crowd watching for a fat, lazy fellow, who does no work and spends his time in eating."

The king laughed, presented her with a coin to pay for the eggs, and to "remember the fat lazy fellow by," and a moment more the royal car had vanished in a whirl of dust before anyone knew it had arrived—save one dumbstruck peasant woman.

New Bound-Proof Books

Various methods of making sound proof building blocks or plates are described in German authorities. The effect of sound is explained in simple terms, and it is shown that the sound absorbing power of a material can be increased by adding sawdust, coke dust or ashes.

The pulp—such as a mixture by weight of 20 parts of sawdust, 10 of gypsum, 40 of water and one of sodium bicarbonate—is poured into moulds and can be left to harden without further attention.

FAILED IN SMALL THINGS.

Congressman Evidently Was No Hero to His Wife.

There is a certain congressman who, whatever authority he may hold in the councils of state, is of comparatively minor importance in his own household. Indeed, it has been unkindly intimated that his wife is "the whole thing" in their establishment.

Representative and Mrs. Blank had been to Baltimore one afternoon. When they left the train at Washington, on their return, Mrs. Blank discovered that her umbrella, which had been entrusted to the care of her husband was missing.

"Where's my umbrella?" she demanded.

"I'm afraid I've forgotten it, my dear," meekly answered the congressman. "It must still be in the train."

"In the train!" snorted the lady. "And to think that the affairs of the nation are entrusted to a man who doesn't know enough to take care of a woman's umbrella!"—Success Magazine.

PURIFIED LIFE INSURANCE.

Benefits from New Law, Which Remains Substantially Unchanged.

Through the influence of Gov. Hughes, the New York Legislature decided to make no radical changes in the new insurance law. It was pointed out by Gov. Hughes that the New York law has already accomplished widespread reforms, with proportionate benefits to policyholders, and that it should be given a thorough trial before any amendments were seriously considered. It is estimated that the cost of the mismanagement of the past did not average more than 20 cents to each policyholder, while the benefits to present and future policyholders will amount to many times more and be cumulative besides. The speed craze of the big companies and the excessive cost of securing new business was the most extravagant evil of the old managements. Under the new regime the cost of new business has already been greatly reduced, along with other economies.

The showing made by the Equitable Life Assurance Society in its report for 1906 was a strong argument against meddling with the new law. In the Equitable alone there was a saving of over $2,000,000 in expenses, besides an increase in the income from the Society's assets amounting to as much more. The ratios of the Equitable's total expenses to its total income was 19.42% in 1904, 17.38% in 1905, and only 14.48% in 1906. The dividends paid to Equitable policyholders in 1906 amounted to $7,289,734, which was an increase of more than 9% over 1905.

While the Equitable made a better showing than any other big company, all reported radical economies and under such conditions the Legislature wisely decided to leave the law substantially as it stands.

Forgetting Something.

When the train that conveyed President Roosevelt through Virginia on his last trip south stopped at Charlottesville, a negro approached the president's car and passed aboard a big basketful of fine fruit, to which was attached the card of a prominent grower.

In course of time the orchardist received a letter of acknowledgment from the White House expressing the president's appreciation of the gift, and complimenting the donor upon his fruit. The recipient of the letter was, of course, greatly pleased, and feeling sure that his head gardener would be much interested in the letter, he read it to him. The darky who served in the capacity mentioned listened gravely, but his only comment was:

"He doan' say nothin' 'bout sendin' back de basket, do he?"—Success Magazine.

Text Somewhat Appropos.

The Rev. J. B. Hamill, the eloquent preacher of the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal church, Brooklyn, was preaching at Sayville, L. I., from the text "Look well to your foundations." After repeating the text he leaned heavily on the pulpit desk, which gave way and plunged over the altar rail, nearly hitting the laymen in the front seat and scattering the Bible and the preacher's notes among the holders of the pews. The aged preacher barely escaped a tumble over the altar with the heavy desk.

WENT TO TEA

And It Wound Her Bobbin.

Tea drinking frequently affects people as badly as coffee. A lady in Salisbury, Md., says that she was compelled to abandon the use of coffee a good many years ago, because it threatened to ruin her health and that she went over to tea drinking, but finally, she had dyspepsia so bad that she had lost twenty-five pounds and no food seemed to agree with her.

She further says: "As this time I was induced to take up the famous food drink, Postum, and was so much pleased with the results that I have never been without it since. I commenced to improve at once, regained my twenty-five pounds of flesh and went some beyond my usual weight."

"I know Postum to be good, pure, and healthful, and there never was an article, and never will be, I believe, that does so surely take the place of coffee, as Postum Food Coffee. The beauty of it all is that it is satisfying and wonderfully nourishing. I feel as if I could not sing its praises too loud." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pgs. "There's a Reason."

Let the Public Know What You Have to Sell—Never Stop Pushing—A Hint for the Clerks.

Pluck.

How often you hear one business man say of another who has been successful: "Ain't he lucky?" Luck has nothing to do with anyone's success. It is pluck.

Pluck and enthusiasm are the powers which make the winner. With these two qualities, which are invariably found together, a man will succeed.

Business men who have achieved greatness in their line are those who possess an abundance of enthusiasm.

A possession that is better than anything else to a man is that determination of character known as pluck, and an enthusiastic confidence that he will succeed.

To persevere against great odds, and to make a victorious fight in the face of almost impossibilities, it requires pluck which is not governed by impulse.

To cultivate pluck one must encourage steadfastness of purpose. When a thing is begun it should be finished.

Be Business Throughout.

A joke is a joke, but business is no joke, and it is mighty hard to make the two mix.

A man once said: "It pays to advertise most businesses, but mine is different." The sheriff sold him out, and now he works for his successor, who does advertise.

Success.

The secret of most successes lies in the man rather than in the method. Making people want the goods is, after all, about as near the secret of it as there comes to being any secret. Make the public want what you have to sell and the sale is half made.

When the man with the overalls comes into your store don't turn around and take your time to wait on him. Don't snub the man with the overalls in order to wait upon some elite of your town—that is, if the overall man came into your store first. Your overall man usually stands by the home town. He works in the shops, in the stock yards, in the factories and in the mills. His dollar is just as good as the dollar given to you by the man who tries to put on all kinds of airs in your town. ## NEWS OF WISCONSIN

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST IN THE VARIOUS TOWNS.

FIGHT EVIL AT KENOSHA

Police Commissioner Fined for Leasing Rooms for Gambling—Move to Close the Saloons on Sunday in Future.

Kenosha.—John E. Keating, a member of the Kenosha police commission and one of the best-known politicians of the city, pleaded guilty to a charge of leasing a building for a gambling room. Keating was fined $100 and costs.

The Kenosha civic federation has begun a determined war against Sunday saloons and asked Attorney General Gilbert to aid in the fight by giving a written opinion in regard to Sunday closing.

STATE AFTER TIMBER THIEVES.

Claim Made That Millions of Feet Has Been Unlawfully Cut.

Superior.—The state's campaign against timber thieves in northern Wisconsin has resulted in the arrest of August Anderson, a logging contractor of this city, this being the first action started by the state for the first time.

Assistant State Forester Moody is prosecuting the case.

Anderson is accused of cutting about 20,000 feet of cedar from state lands in this county. The state has been making a thorough inspection of all timbered state lands and it is claimed millions of feet of timber has been cut unlawfully.

Missing Kenosha Man Found.

Kenosha.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance of George N. Fay, a wealthy hardware dealer, who has been missing since last January, has been solved. It was learned that Fay is living in a small village in Canada. It is alleged that Fay is prepared to fight extradition, should the district attorney seek to bring him back to Kenosha on charges of abandoning his family.

Seize Workmen's Wheels.

Marinette.—It required a big wagon to carry to the county jail all the bicycles seized by the police from the workmen riding on the sidewalk on Riverside avenue. Repeated warnings had been given against riding wheels on sidewalks or paved streets, but the paper mill workmen persisted and had to pay five dollars and costs each to recover their bicycles.

Annual G. A. R. Banquet.

Kenosha.—Z. G. Simmons has begun to make arrangements for his annual banquet for the members of the Grand Army in Kenosha, Racine, Milwaukee and Chicago, and it is announced that the banquet will be held in one of the large rooms of the new building of the Simmons Manufacturing company the evening of June 22.

Favors Use of the Rod.

Menominee.—"To my way of thinking there is nothing as efficient as a good switch to stop truancy, and I do not think that the efficacy of a good whipping is tried as often as it should be in and out of school to-day," stated Judge Waite, of the Menominee municipal court, while summing up the truancy reports of the year.

Police Relief Association.

Racine.—The Racine police department is to organize a relief association on the same lines as that of Milwaukee, Chicago and other cities. Committees have been appointed at the suggestion of Mayor Horlick, who informed the members of the department that he will start the fund with a good substantial sum.

Robinson Raises $5,000.

Racine.—Racine college chapel is to have a new $5,000 pipe organ. Some months since Rev. H. D. Robinson, warden, asked for subscriptions. The money came in slow at first, but Sunday when he opened his mail he was gratified to find a check for $2,000, making up what was required for the organ.

Miners to Go to South Africa.

Negaunee.—There has been quite an exodus of northern miners for South Africa. First class workmen there receive in some cases as high as $20 a day. The ordinary wages however, amount to about five dollars a day. The main inducements seem to be a fine climate and inexpensive living.

Sixth in Building List.

Milwaukee.—This city was the sixth city of the country in the amount of building permits issued in May, being surpassed only by New York, Brooklyn, Chicago, San Francisco and Philadelphia. The gain over May of last year was 203 per cent, the increase being from $751,121 to $2,274,379.

Rocks Boat and Drowns Girl.

Chetek.—Minnie Rendsy, 23 years old, was drowned in Chippewa river near Paddisdon through Isidore Cornelius rocking the boat. A younger sister was saved by a brother of the girls. Cornelius, it is said, swam ashore without stopping to try to save the girls.

Buys Land for Colony.

Marinette.—George Baldwin, of Appleton, has purchased 3,400 acres of land of William Holmes, of Menominee, for colonizing purposes.

Opportunity knocks once—and often a dozen times—at every door, but you have no kick against the fates if Opportunity knocks, finds you lost in a pipe dream and turns away never to return.

Bacon said: "The mold of a man's fortune is in his own hands."

All men cannot be captains of industry. All men cannot succeed phenomenally. All men, it seems, cannot succeed even moderately, but all men can make an effort to succeed.

We must not stop striving to reach a higher and better place until we are willing to sink to the bottom. If we simply expect to float and not try to swim we might just as well quit. It would be well for us to keep as a motto before us: "Perseverance and pluck conquer all things," for it bears close relationship to the subject chosen. If we regarded the little opportunities in life more seriously and made the most use of them we would be better able to master the golden opportunities.

Let It Be Known.

You may know that you have the best assorted stock in town, but the public will not know it unless you tell them about it; they are not clairvoyants. First use the newspapers liberally, then circulars, personal letters, talk to them when you can catch them in your store, at their homes—anywhere. The first and last thing to bear in mind about advertising is that it is as wide as human nature in its appeal.

Advertising is the mighty engine of success, and without it the business world would be minus its dynamo of energy.

Push All the Time.

If it pays to push when business is good, it pays to push when business is bad.

If it pays to push when business is bad, it pays to push when business is good.

If it pays to push at all, it pays to push all the time.

Therefore, don't let it die.

When everything is coming your way, push to make it come the faster.

When everything is going the other way, push to make it come back to you.

Push all the time and you'll feel the better for it, and make more money.

It takes hard thinking and hard

Fashion is Ever Changing.

Mrs. Shopper—is that hat that was $35 this morning the same price still? Milliner—Certainly! Why not? Mrs. Shopper—Well, it's not such a new style as it was then.—Judge.
